Super secretary

Mayor's aide has diverse duties

Representatives of multi-billion dollar corporations and residents with neighborhood dog problems call her on a regular basis, and she treats them all with respect.

She is the "mayor's office," "economic development," "city attorney's office" and "David Williams' office" all rolled into one.

Donna Fanning, administrative assistant to Mayor Von Dee Cruse, is a super secretary who goes out of her way to help everyone she deals with.

Although her coffee mug says she is "allergic to morning," she is always ready and willing to help everyone who comes her way, whether it is a resident who cannot get his garbage picked up or a congressman needing to speak with the mayor.

Restaurants may get inspections

License fees may finance plan, county official says

Madison County residents will not pay higher taxes to make sure restaurant food is safe, says a county official who is pushing for restaurants inspections.

In the wake of last month's hepatitis outbreak at an Alton fast-food restaurant, County Board member Bob Stille and other officials began looking into the possibility of hiring a restaurant inspector to monitor food handling, storage and preparation at restaurants, convenience stores and other establishments where food is prepared and sold.

Such inspections are usually handled by the local health department. But, since Madison County has no health department, there have never been countywide restaurant inspections.

Last week, Stille suggested the inspections would require a tax increase.

Now Stille is saying the latest indications are that licensing fees for restaurant owners would be sufficient to cover the cost of the inspections.

"It's not going to be overnight. What we're going to have to do is set up our own ordinances, inspections and fees," said Stille, who is chairman of the County Board's Health Institutions Committee.

Hagnauer

Every restaurant in the county would be required to obtain a license and undergo periodic inspections, Stille said.

In addition, there would be different grades of licenses for each type of establishment, just as there are different types of liquor licenses for taverns, grocery stores and gas stations.

Stille and County Board Chairman Nelson Hagnauer have discussed the plan but no firm timetable for hiring an inspector has been set. A county food- handling ordinance would have to be passed before an inspector could be hired, Stille said.

Some restaurant operators are enthusiastic about the proposed inspections, which they said would dispel some potential customers' misgivings about dining out.

There are occasional state inspections by the Illinois Department of Public

Slight property tax drop in Granite City

By Mike Myers

| Municipality | 1991 | 1992 | Change |
|---|---|---|---|
| Granite City | 8.1517 | 8.1493 | −.0024 |
| Madison | 9.1175 | 9.2069 | +.0894 |
| Venice | 9.9208 | 10.0961 | +1.0402 |
| Pontoon Beach | 7.9806 | 7.9895 | +.0089 |

The property tax rate this year will drop very slightly for most Granite City residents but will rise for almost everyone else.

According to rates released by Madison County Clerk Evelyn Bowles, most citizens who own real estate in Granite City will have a tax rate of $8.1493 per $100 of assessed valuation compared to a rate of $8.1517 last year.

Under the new rate, a person owning a $30,000 home, assessed at $10,000, would have a property tax bill of $814.93 compared to a bill of $815.17 last year.

In Madison, a person owning the same home will have a property tax bill of $920.60 (a tax rate of $9.2060 per $100) compared to $911.75 last year.

In Venice, the property tax bill for the same home will be $1,009.61 (a tax rate of 10.0961 per $100) compared to $992.08 last year.

In Pontoon Beach, the property tax bill will be $798.95 (a tax rate of $7.9895 per $100) compared to $798.06 last year.

A breakdown of the standard rates, with last year's rates in parentheses, for Granite City residents:

Madison County, .8519 (.8497); Granite City Township, .2919 (.3029); Granite City $1.2649 ($1.2955); Granite City Park District, .4179 (.3275); Granite City School District $4.1401 ($4.1433), Belleville Area College, .2126 (.2400); Metro East Sanitary District, .6874 (.7002); and Granite City Library District, .2826 (.2926).

Jobs program targeted

The U.S. Department of Labor will issue new guidelines later this year to Madison County and other local employment training offices across the country to prevent abuses in on-the-job training programs.

"We're not trying to kill (on-the-job training). We just want to ensure it is appropriately used," said Bob Easley, a Department of Labor training specialist.

Despite a high success rate of placing job trainees, the Madison County Employment and Training Office has been among local offices across the country scaling back on-the-job training programs that last several years, on orders from the federal government, county officials said.

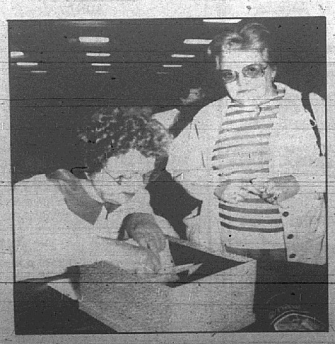

The Madison County program, which involves subsidizing the salaries of trainees in skilled private-sector jobs, had a 69 percent success rate last year in placing trainees in permanent jobs, county records showed.

But federal officials who pay for the training offices have been pressuring local officials to phase out the training because of widespread abuse of the program in other parts of the country.

Ten active mayoral candidates were not enough to draw the voters out in the cold rain Tuesday morning and poll workers outnumbered voters at many Granite City polling places during the first hour of the election.

Voting was reported light throughout the city at 9 a.m., but most poll workers expected it to pick up as the clouds cleared and the weather improved. Most workers said they expected a city-wide turnout of at least 9,000 voters.

The 10 candidates for Granite City mayor, in ballot order, are Alderman Paul Fisk, Alderman Jeff Worthen, Alderman Walter Milton, businessman and bodybuilder Dan McGuire, restaurant owner Archie Lupardus, Alderman Dan Brown, Joseph McGinness, former assistant police chief Ron Selph, James Bailey Sr. and Steve Bolling.

Granite City also had incumbent City Clerk Bob Stevens challenged by police officer Roy Koberna and there were contested aldermanic races in all seven wards.

Early voting in Madison was reprted to be very heavy and several poll workers said they expected the hotly contested mayoral and township races to bring out just about every registered voter in the city.

Madison had competing slates led by incumbent Mayor John Bellcoff and Alderman John Hamm as well as independent candidates Tom Voloski for mayor and Ron Grzywacz for alderman.

Venice Township had competing slates led by

Ex-trooper is dramatic example of DUI tragedy

BETHALTO — Vonzell Ward is living proof that drinking and driving don't mix.

But the former Maryland state trooper has suffered the consequences of the often fatal combination every day for the past 12 years.

Ward, 38, is the victim of a drunken driving accident in 1981. He shared his story with hundreds of Civic Memorial High School students Thursday at a drunken driving awareness seminar sponsored by the Madison County Chapter of Mothers Against Drunken Drivers.

"I retired as a state trooper in July 1983," he told the crowd. "If wasn't because I'm old, it wasn't because I'm ugly and it wasn't because I'm fat. I retired because my legs had been broken in 67 places."

Ward was on his way home from work when a 17-year-old youth who was trying to escape police, drove head-on into Ward's vehicle at more than 88 mph.

In addition to his broken legs, most of Ward's vital organs had ruptured, his ribs were crushed, his lungs collapsed and his knees and ankles were destroyed.

"It took the fire department one hour and 45 minutes to cut me out of my car," he said. "The car was on fire and the lower half of my body was burning. I never lost consciousness. I remember begging the other troopers at the scene to please shoot me. They said they couldn't because it would have been murder."

When Ward arrived in the emergency room, one doctor told him he would wake up without a left leg, another told him he may suffer brain damage and an internal surgeon told him he had to operate without anesthesia.

"Fifteen to 20 people held me down on the table and the surgeon took his scalpel and cut me from the top of my chest to my pelvic region. I hollered and screamed, but the pain didn't stop. Twenty minutes later I stopped talking because I was dead."

Doctors were able to revive Ward on the operating table and he was unconscious for the next 50 days.

"I became a morphine addict," he said. "And after they took me off the morphine I realized I couldn't go to the bathroom by myself. Two very ugly men came in my room and gave me enemas. I was told I would never be able to walk but the doctors said I could keep my legs for cosmetic reasons. This is serious, serious business and none of it had to happen."

After years of physical therapy, Ward regained his ability to walk. He said he only sleeps two or three hours a day because the pain keeps him awake.

"Before I got out of the hospital my wife told me she couldn't live with someone in a wheelchair," he said. "She divorced me."

Six years after his divorce, Ward learned his ex-wife had been carrying his daughter at the time of the divorce.

"I've not been my daughter," he said, holding back tears. "I don't know where she is. There is always more than one victim in drunken driving accidents."

Ward made two unsuccessful attempts at suicide before he got his life back in order.

"I'm not proud of it," he said. "I don't condone suicide. People have to find someone to talk to. Men don't talk, they don't cry. Men are stupid."

The 17-year-old who destroyed Ward's career walked away from the accident with minor injuries. He spent 10 days in a juvenile detention home and is now employed as a police officer in Washington, D.C.

Before the accident, "I was a success in my eyes," Ward said. "I graduated from college. I graduated from the state police academy. But then Russell (the drunken driver) came along and in the blink of an eye, wiped out everything I had worked for."

The state forced him to retire and awarded him two-thirds of his pension.

"I lost everything," he said. "My house, my car and my family. And for what, a six-pack of beer. I stand a good chance of losing my leg in a couple of months because they can't do another vein graft. I don't have any veins left and my circulation is destroyed.

"On March 21, 1981, Russell did more than break my legs. He stole my soul and my livelihood. He ran his hands down my throat, down to my crotch and he turned me inside out. I don't dislike young people. I just dislike him. Remember what you've been told. And please, don't be a Russell. Don't drink and drive."

Ward's audience gave him a standing ovation and several students shook his hand before returning to classes.

"I need to be reminded of how much worse off I could have been," he said. "If I had all the answers, I wouldn't have to share this story with teen-agers."

High School senior Mandy Govero said she learned a valuable lesson from Ward.

"It definitely taught me how easy it can happen," she said. "I think a lot of kids will think about him the next time they get behind the wheel of a car."

KMOX personality Bob Hardy dies at 62

Robert Hardy, a KMOX radio station personality for 33 years, called himself "lucky" to have gotten such a career opportunity with the radio giant.

And the St. Louis metropolitan area also can count itself lucky to have been the benefactor of a man of his stature.

Hardy, 62, died at 1:46 p.m. Sunday in the emergency room of St. Joseph Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack at his home.

"I thought I could make something out of myself as a broadcaster," Hardy said when interviewed by the Journal in August. "I have been lucky."

Hardy's long radio career began while he was a member of the Air Force Radio Network. He served as a ground radio instructor at Scott Air Force Base for nine years before being sent to the Philippines, where he built and operated a 5,000-watt station at Clark Air Base.

When he returned to the United States in 1955, he found part-time work at WIBV-AM in Belleville. He also worked more than two years at WIL radio, where he was the station's news director.

Hardy left the Air Force in 1957 to work full-time in the broadcasting field. In 1960, he was asked to come to KMOX by the station's late general manager, Robert Hyland. He did, and had been there since.

He was most known for co-hosting KMOX's morning talk show, "Total Information AM." He helped pioneer the station's news-talk format, and did other news chores, such as handling a two-hour news block from late morning to early afternoon and anchoring a live broadcast from the Soviet Union before the Cold War ended.

Although he had been out of the Air Force for more than 35 years, Hardy's interest in the military did not wane. He and his wife, Rita, still were involved with the USO at Lambert Field and chaired the USO Golf Tourney at Scott Air Force Base.

He also was active with the Masonic Lodge and worked with numerous civic groups in the area, including the St. Louis Heart Association, the Southern Illinois University Foundation at Edwardsville and the St. Louis Press Club. He was a past potentate of the Ainad Shrine Temple and was active in programs of the Shriners Hospital for Crippled Children.

Hardy is survived by his wife, Rita; a daughter, Sandy of Dover Air Force Base, Del.; a son, Bob Jr., of Flagstaff, Ariz.; and two grandchildren.

Visitation will begin at 4 p.m. today at Spengel-Boulanger Funeral Home, 1501 Ninth St., Highland.

Services will be held at 4 p.m. Thursday at Christ Church Cathedral, 1210 Locust St., St. Louis.

An obituary notice is given elsewhere in this issue.

Two arrested in robbery

Two Granite City men were arrested late Monday night after allegedly breaking into a downtown apartment while armed with a gun and a knife.

The two suspects, a 30-year-old resident of the 2400 block of Iowa Street and a 29-year-old resident of the 700 block of Niedringhaus Avenue, were being held in the Granite City Jail on Tuesday morning pending application for felony warrants charging them with home invasion and burglary.

An officer on patrol reported seeing a man jump out of a second-story apartment window above Granite City Cyclery, 1231 19th St., on the Niedringhaus Avenue side of the building, just after 11:30 p.m.

A resident of the apartment told the police officer that two men wearing ski masks, one armed with a knife and the other with a handgun, had just broken into his apartment.

The four victims told police that the alleged burglars forced them to lie on the floor.

After a struggle, the burglars attempted to flee, according to a police report.

Officers captured the alleged burglars at the scene. A gun was recovered from the scene, police sources said.

Marijuana amounting to about three ounces also was seized, according to a police report.

Capt. Jim Lengyel declined to comment on the case Tuesday morning.

Electricity blamed in fire

A house fire in Lincoln Place on Monday afternoon was apparently electrical in nature.

The blaze, in the 1600 block of Poplar Street, is believed to have ignited in an electrical box in the basement of the one-and-a-half-story frame home, Fire Chief Jerry Wallace said.

A neighbor reported the fire by telephone. No one was home at the time of the blaze.

The occupant of the home, Cathy Jennings, came home to lunch to discover smoke in the house.

A neighbor at the scene said she suspects the wiring in the home had been smoldering all morning.

"I've been smelling something all morning, like somebody was burning something," the neighbor said.

"I never dreamed that the house was on fire."

Firefighters entered the home through the front door. Flame damage was evident throughout the building, and smoke permeated the entire house. Two off-duty firefighters who were in the area assisted in extinguishing the blaze.

Police log

Six traffic charges

John E. Hakkarainen, 36, of the 1800 block of Third Street in Madison, was arrested at 2:41 a.m. April 19 for driving under the influence of alcohol, speeding, driving while his license is revoked, driving without liability insurance, having a suspended registration from emissions testing, and driving with one tail light.

An officer reported seeing a brown 1979 Dodge Aspen traveling at 49 miles per hour in a 35-mph zone on Edwardsville Road at 14th Street.

Hakkarainen, the driver, took three field sobriety tests, refused to take a breath analysis test and was charged.

His driver's license had been suspended twice before — in 1991 and again earlier this year — for DUI charges, according to a police report.

DUI arrest on Madison

Charles J. Ringling, 36, of the 2300 block of Washington Avenue, was arrested at 12:19 a.m. April 19 for driving under the influence of alcohol, improper lane usage, operating an uninsured vehicle and driving while his license is suspended.

An officer reported seeing a brown 1980 Pontiac station wagon being driven erratically in the 2900 block of Madison Avenue, crossing the double center line a number of times.

Ringling, the driver, took three field sobriety tests, declined to take a breath analysis test and was charged.

Pot possession alleged

Charles T. Ragan, 37, of the 3000 block of Nameoki Road, was arrested at 4:38 a.m. April 18 and charged with unlawful possession of cannabis.

Ragan allegedly possessed about 14 grams of a substance believed to contain cannabis in an incident at his girlfriend's apartment in the 300 block of Kirkpatrick Homes, according to a police report.

Ragan was also found to be wanted on an outstanding 1992 warrant.

Nameoki Road arrest

Michael J. Stephens, 29, of the 2500 block of Edwards Street, was arrested at 2:58 a.m. April 17 for driving under the influence of alcohol and driving without headlights when required.

where it was quite effectively used, but we found many other places where it was abused," Easley said.

On-the-job training is intended to provide hands-on training in high-paying skilled jobs.

The experience trainees receive is expected to help them find permanent work in that field.

Some employers, however, used the program to subsidize low-wage, unskilled service jobs, Easley said.

"In one instance, this guy said he had hired a foreign chef, but it was just some kid sprinkling cheese on pizza. He was no more a foreign chef than I'm a rocket scientist. Hell, he wasn't even putting it in the oven."

Madison County officials said that sort of abuse has not been a problem here but that local emphasis has been shifted away from on-the-job training because of pressure from the Labor Department.

"(On-the-job training) has decreased some (nationwide), partly because the Department of Labor was being overcautious as a result of the abuses uncovered. Unfortunately, the perception has been that we are trying to do away with it altogether," Easley said.

New guidelines intended to help local officials prevent abuses will be issued in the next few months, he said.

"We view it as a very desirable and useful program for some individuals. What we are interested in doing is making sure it isn't misappropriated."

Last year, Madison County spent $111,798 to train 78 people.

'Universal health care now'

Thirty attend rally in Edwardsville

By Shay Wessol
Staff writer

Young and old rallied on the Madison County Courthouse steps Saturday morning in support of universal health care, carrying signs reading "Universal Health Care Now," and "Only two industrialize nations don't have universal health care: the United States and South Africa."

The event was sponsored by the Metro East Campaign for Better Health Care, a grassroots organization formed about three years ago to rally for universal health care in the United States. About 30 people attended the rally, which was aimed at drawing people's attention to the near-crisis health-care situation in the country.

"It's a very important issue and people should realize that," said Imogene Richeson, an Alton resident who attended the rally. "It can't keep going like it is or the system is going to collapse."

Richeson favors the single-payer plan the organization backs. The plan is similar to the Canadian health-care system and gives consumers freedom to choose any hospital, doctor or specialist and eliminates the need for insurance companies.

Richeson supports the plan because it allows her freedom of choice, meaning she could keep her family doctor.

For M. "Gene" Newcom, of Rosewood Heights, the plan offers fewer complications and hassles. "It's just like Medicare," he said. "I've read all these different plans, and this one is the simplest and the easiest."

The managed-competition plan, now supported by President Bill Clinton, would keep insurance companies intact and require consumers to enroll in HMOs or other managed-care plan, said Dave Rathke, a member of the campaign.

"The system that we have now, with the insurance companies, the people who work for profit, is not a caring system," said Jim Carroll, co-founder of the movement. "We need the personal touch to make the person who is sick feel better."

Union members from across the area spoke out in favor of the single-payer plan, along with state Rep. Jay Hoffman, D- Collinsville.

"We want a system in Illinois that's going to work," Hoffman said. "We want a system in Illinois that doesn't bankrupt the small businessman."

Of the 11 million citizens of Illinois, 1.5 million do not have health insurance, he said.

The campaign will hold a rally Thursday in Springfield as part of Health Care Action Day.

New mock UN program this week

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

Terrorism, the environment and world peace will be among topics more than 200 area middle school students will tackle at a mock United Nations Conference this week.

The first Triad Invitational Middle School Model United Nations will be held at Triad Middle School from 6 to 9 p.m. Thursday and from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Friday. The school's seventh- and eighth-graders will be among the participants.

The event is being organized by Dr. James Kerr, chairman of the Social Sciences department at Triad High School. While their high school counterparts participate in such conferences twice a year, this is the first time that younger students are being given such an opportunity.

Kerr said that officials from the United Nations Association told him that the program at Triad is only one of three in the country involving students at that age level.

Each student has written a resolution for debate in one of three committees, the General Assembly or the Security Council. The debates, in which 45 countries will be represented, will follow parliamentary procedure. Countries were assigned by random drawing, Kerr said.

Kerr has been to all 15 of the participating schools and met with all of the students who will be involved. Despite their youth, Kerr said the students are handling all of the material well.

"I was very pleasantly surprised by the level of their preparation and with the knowledge they already had of parliamentary procedure," Kerr said.

Kerr said he also feels very confident about how much students will glean from the experience. In order to debate the issues successfully, they have had to learn about the countries and even more about the issues.

Jim Beckman, adviser for the 14 Venice Elementary School seventh-graders in the program, said the learning process has been a good experience for his students, who will represent Egypt, Ecuador and Belgium.

"I see them knowing more about the issues, things like world pollution, international crime and women's rights," Beckman said. "The kids are really getting into it."

Venice woman elected new BAC student trustee

Valonda Turner of Venice will be sworn in as Belleville Area College's new student trustee at the BAC board meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Belleville campus.

Turner, 20, was elected to the office by her fellow Granite City students during the week of April 5-8. She ran against fellow Granite City students Michelle Monroe and David Rothe.

Turner said she is eager to find out what issues BAC students are concerned about the most.

"I think it will be a great opportunity to communicate with the students and to be able to communicate those thoughts to the board of trustees," Turner said.

She will replace Belleville student Jayme Frye as the student representative to the BAC Board of Trustees. In that position, Turner's vote on board issues will be advisory only.

Turner said she is anxious to find out more about the way the college operates.

"I have seen things from a student point of view up until now," she said. "I will be able to see things from a business point of view from now on."

Turner is a student worker assigned to the registration office at the Granite City Campus, 4950 Maryville Road.

She will graduate from BAC in December with a degree in business administration and plans to follow that with another degree in international marketing.

Turner is the daughter of the Rev. Alfred and Stephanie Turner.

Fuel tax hike sought for cleanup

By Mike Mosser
Correspondent

SPRINGFIELD — An increase in the state's motor fuel tax could help landowners pay for cleaning up old underground storage tanks.

A bill passed by the Illinois Senate on Thursday would double the tax from three-tenths of a cent per gallon.

Sen. President James "Pate" Philip, R-Woodale, said the increase would generate about $17 million a year in revenue.

The fund is needed because leaking underground tanks are a costly environmental hazard, allowing chemicals to leach into soil and ground water, he argued. Abandoned gasoline stations are the most at risk.

The money would be funneled into an Underground Storage Tank Fund and the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency would have to approve applications for funding.

Under current law, underground tanks must be registered with the state fire marshal at a cost of $500 for each tank.

If the bill is signed into law, tank owners would have a 60-day grace period to register their tanks.

In other action, the Senate:

- Passed supplemental funding for a nursing home grant program to help residents offset the impact of the state's daily nursing home tax.
- Approved a program requiring the Illinois Department of Public Health to award money to doctors in rural areas for their cost of malpractice insurance.

TWO TYPES OF HAMMERTOES

They are never a pretty sight, and they should never be ignored. Hammertoes are usually an inherited affliction brought about by a muscle imbalance or abnormal bone length. The condition's characteristic profile, a toe bent like the head of a hammer, can cause pain and irritation as well as loss of function. Hammertoes are either flexible or rigid. A flexible hammertoe can be manipulated up and down, straightening and relaxing the "hammer head." In such cases, the toe's top and bottom tendons and the joint capsules may be cut to release the bend. Rigid hammertoes, which cannot be manipulated by hand, may require removal of part of the joint, perhaps accompanied by fusion of the bones.

P.S. Corns, or accumulations of dead skin cells, often form on the tops of the hammertoes' contracted joints.

Soy, corn called important future vehicle fuel source

Soy and corn are moving from fueling humans to fueling vehicles.

"There may be some real opportunity for us because we're producing renewable sources of fuel now," Kendall Cole, director of District 12 Illinois Soybean Association, said at a meeting of biofuel supporters.

At the meeting, speakers emphasized the importance of using SoyDiesel, produced from soybeans, and ethanol, produced from corn, to fuel commercial and fleet vehicles of the future.

Ethanol, a renewable, clean-burning fuel is processed from corn to boost octane, reduce dependence on foreign oil and cut carbon monoxide emissions. The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency has found that ethanol blends can reduce carbon monoxide emissions by as much as 30 percent.

"You can produce almost anything out of a bushel of corn that you can out of a barrel of oil, and we say do it environmentally safer," said Gary Edwards, director of District 10 Illinois Corn Marketing Board. "It'll biodegrade, and the vehicles perform just as good or better."

The market for ethanol has grown considerably since 1978, when virtually no corn was raised for fuel, known then as gasahol.

Today, nearly 400 million bushels of corn go into ethanol production each year. About half of the nation's supply is produced in Illinois, which has been a pioneer in ethanol research.

Unlike ethanol, which focuses its market toward automobiles and small trucks, SoyDiesel primarily targets large fleets of trucks and ships.

SoyDiesel is a diesel fuel that is essentially sulfur-free, emits significantly fewer hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide and does not produce explosive vapors.

Over the last 10 years, European studies have found as much as a 70 percent reduction in smoke pollution from diesel engines operating with this fuel, the experts said.

Current costs of producing Soy Diesel are projected at $1.50 per gallon.

"I don't see it out here in the country right away because of the cost," said Jim Gay, vice chairman of the National Soy Diesel Development Board. "But as specifics on emissions come in, we think we're going to see this fuel being used in fleets, such as marine fleets."

Gay said SoyDiesel is targeting boat operations because the fuel is biodegradable.

"It's not going to kill the fish in the stream or the wildlife along the banks, and in a matter of three weeks or so, it'll be gone."

However, SoyDiesel is a long way from becoming a common fuel.

"We're right at the beginning," Gay said. "We have some fairly lofty goals in the next 10 years, but we do know that we can grow our own fuels. I'm looking for ward to the day we can actually accomplish it."

Scouts plan annual Lincoln Pilgrimage

Local Boy Scout troops and Cub Scout packs are planning to participate in the 49th annual Lincoln Pilgrimage to be held on Sunday, April 25.

Since 1946, the Abraham Lincoln Council of the Boy Scouts of America, in Springfield, has sponsored a Boy Scout Pilgrimage to President Abraham Lincoln's Tomb.

Last year about 10,000 Scouts participated in a parade from Lincoln's Tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery to the steps of the Illinois State Capitol.

Each year, the American flag and unit flag from each Boy Scout troop and Cub Scout pack are marched en masse at the front of the parade, and an impressive Avenue of Flags in formed in front of the Capitol at the conclusion of the parade.

Each year, a recognized leader pays tribute to Lincoln at the Lincoln Tomb immediately before the parade. Last year, Richard H. Leet, national president of the Boy Scouts of America and retired vice chairman of Amoco Oil Corp., gave the tribute to Lincoln. This year, Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar will present the tribute.

Parents of Scouts should watch for information from unit leaders with regard to the pilgrimage. Some Boy Scout troops will plan a weekend campout at Springfield area camp, will hike the 21-mile Lincoln Trail from New Salem State Park to Springfield on Saturday, April 24, and will participate in the pilgrimage ceremonies on Sunday, April 25.

Cub Scout packs generally make the pilgrimage a one-day event with a family picnic lunch, a visit to the Illinois Vietnam Veterans Memorial and Lincoln's Tomb in Oak Ridge Cemetery, and participate in the tribute and parade.

Voters to get voice on tax cap proposal

SPRINGFIELD — Senate President James "Pate" Philip and Gov. Jim Edgar have abandoned their efforts to impose statewide property tax hike caps and will let voters voice their opinion instead.

Philip, R-Wood Dale, gutted the original contents of this tax cap bill supported by Edgar in a Senate committee hearing Friday.

Philip conceded that he did not have enough votes to pass the bill because of apparent opposition from all the Senate Democrats and some Republicans.

His amendment, adopted on a partisan vote in the committee, would only expand the cap of 5 percent annual increases that are in effect in Chicago suburban counties to Cook County, except for home-rule cities there.

The amendment does not threaten to impose any caps Down-state but would place an advisory referendum on the issue on the November 1994 statewide ballot.

Edgar supported the alternative.

Democrats offered a substitute plan that would give voters in individual school districts the option of approving a local income tax of 1 percent, with at least half to be used to reduce real estate taxes, but that failed to garner Republican support and was defeated.

Philip denounced the measure as "a Loony Tunes idea." Sen. Walter Dudycz, R-Chicago, said it "would take one dollar out of a taxpayer's pockets and give him back 50 cents."

But Senate Democratic Leader Emil Jones of Chicago contended the Democrats' plan was real property tax reduction while the Republicans' advisory referendum was "pie in the sky."

The referendum would not be binding, but Philip predicted that lawmakers who wanted to be re-elected would come back to Springfield and push for property tax caps if the voters in their districts voted for them.

Centreville hospital praised

By Peggy O'Farrell
Staff writer

The founder of the newly-dedicated Touchette Regional Hospital said he'll be working to make the hospital and Southern Illinois Healthcare Foundation "bigger and better."

Retiring Centreville Township Supervisor Francis Touchette was one of many who turned out Saturday to celebrate the hospital's new name and status as a privately-owned facility. Touchette founded the facility, which will remain Centreville Township Hospital until May 1, in 1958.

"I've already put in a call to Hillary Clinton" about the partnership between the hospital and the foundation to provide healthcare to low-income families.

"I've warned them, get ready, we're coming at you. We want some more money here" to expand, Touchette said. "We're on our way."

Touchette said he founded the hospital after a young man died "carrying a broken appendix around inside him for four days."

No beds were available at any of the local hospitals, and the young man was eventually taken to a St. Louis hospital, Touchette said.

"That was what said to me we had to do something about it," Touchette said.

"I think you can do anything if you try. It takes time. I said to myself, we have got to build a hospital here, and it's because of that man and many others," he said.

Under the new partnership, the hospital is a controlled affiliate of Southern Illinois Healthcare Foundation, and the two entities will work to combine comprehensive in-patient and ambulatory care.

> 'I think you can do anything if you try. It takes time. I said to myself, we have got to build a hospital here, and it's because of that man and many others.'
> — Francis Touchette
> Hospital founder

Illinois State Treasurer Patrick Quinn, keynote speaker at the dedication ceremony, said the hospital's mission "wasn't just a word or lip service given to health care."

Touchette Regional Hospital's tradition of providing access to the poor is "a model for all of us" as state and federal officials work to hammer out healthcare packages, Quinn said.

Bob Klutts, executive director of Southern Illinois Healthcare Foundation said the conversion means the hospital's mission has been "not only preserved, but it's going to be strengthened, and it's going to be strengthened in a great way. It's about being the provider for the medically underserved and the Medicaid population is this part of Illinois."

With the conversion, Klutts said, the hospital will "focus mainly on women and babies. What we want to do in Touchette Regional Hospital is to become the regional hospital in the area of pediatrics and obstetrics."

Mark Brodeur, the hospital's chief executive officer, said the hospital is celebrating "a rich heritage" of healthcare service.

Since its opening in 1958, Brodeur said, the hospital has treated more than 200,000 inpatients, more than 350,000 patients in the emergency room and delivered 31,000 babies. The hospital and healthcare foundation also provide 440 jobs in the area, he said.

Postal Service gets high ratings

Residents of St. Louis, mid-Missouri and southern Illinois gave the U.S. Postal Service a resounding "thumbs up" approval rating in the second quarter for 1993, announced Gateway District Manager John Goodman.

Independent measurement by Opinion Research Corp., indicated 89 percent of the households in the Gateway District rate their service "excellent," "very good" or "good," — up three points over last quarters figures, Goodman said.

"This is on par with the national score of 89 percent, which was the highest nationwide satisfaction rating since measurement began nearly two years ago," Goodman said.

The Gateway District includes the St. Louis metro area, metro East, Columbia/Jefferson City areas, and southern Illinois.

Goodman adds that several key service improvements are responsible for the higher rating.

"We extend window service hours at many of the local post offices and increased the frequency of our collections in many areas," Goodman explained. "Our automated system continues to speed up the processing of mail, and, of course, I'm proud of our employees. It is evident that they are focused on providing our customers with quality service."

Carrie Heck as Lucille catches her husband, Billy (played by Dustin Wilkinson), with the "other women," Winnie (Suzanne Learch) and Betty (Lisa Parks) in a scene from "No, No, Nanette!"

'No, No, Nanette!' at GCHS

A nostalgic journey back to the 20's will be presented this week at Granite City High School as the Music and Speech Departments present "No, No, Nanette!," this year's Spring musical.

It will be presented in the high school auditorium at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday and Friday. Tickets are $4 and may be purchased at the door.

The 20's were a time when things were dearer, sweeter, sillier, and probably a lot more fun. This play is no exception — it revolves around the problems of Jimmy Smith, a publisher, and all the trouble he gets into just trying to make everyone happy. The stage is filled with amazed and bewildered people enmeshed in a series of complications and misunderstandings.

Leading roles are played by Aaron Belmer (Tom), John Buxton (Jimmy Smith), Regina Hankins (Nanette), Carrie Heck (Lucille), Suzanne Learch (Winnie), Jennifer Norris (Sue), Lisa Parks, (Betty), Alicia Skirball (Flora), Julie Wienhoff (Pauline), and Dustin Wilkinson (Billy Early).

The play is directed by Beverley Scroggins of the Speech Department. Assisting her are Vocal Music teacher Gail E. Mueller as musical director, Margaret Holland Pennell as choreographer, and Jennifer Gaumer as piano accompanist.

Others in the cast are: Jason Alvarado, Mandy Bloodworth, Wendy Atkinson, Deborah Brackins, Jacquie Brewer, Stacey Brimm, Kip Campbell, Jeffrey Crain, Anna Farmer, April Glowacki, Clint Griggs, Michael Halbrook, Timothy Harris, Jeremy Hartman, Judith Hoover, Tiffanie Hurt, Kim Horn, Jennifer Lewis, Jeremy Lewis, Amanda Kelley, Jennifer Lindsay, Shawn Lynch, Andrea Malone, Matt Marsala, Traci Mell, Jennifer Milton, Jennifer Moore, Michele Mance, Teresa Morris, Jamie Oliver, Thomas Parmley, Michael Patton, Beth Peery, Mathilde Pommier, Paul Pulaski, James Rooney, David Rudolph, Kevin Randall, Greg Weckman, Derrick Webb, Jason White, Emily Zarate and Tim Howell.

Business group gets technology aid grant

The River Bend Growth Association has received a $75,000 grant from the Illinois Department of Commerce and Community Affairs to provide assistance in updating the technology of manufacturers in Southwestern Illinois.

Through this grant, the Growth Association will establish the Alliance for Southwestern Illinois Manufacturing Service.

The alliance is a partnership of Lewis and Clark Community College, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, Belleville Area College and State Community College.

The purpose of the grant is to assist the manufacturers of Southwestern Illinois in updating their production technologies. Although the assistance provided will be tailored to meet the individual needs of a firm, areas of potential projects could include: Total Quality Management, ISO 9000, Computer-aided Design, Computer-integrated Manufacturing and other elements of industrial modernization.

Bill Crews, president of the Growth Association stated, "The efforts of this grant and the establishment of the Alliance, will be to foster support for the regional manufacturing base to assist individual firms in becoming more competitive in the world marketplace."

Jim Mager, director for SIUE's Center for Advanced Manufacturing and Production (CAMP), chaired a meeting on March 30 to plan how the funds can be used to benefit manufacturers. Participating in the meeting were the Alliance partners, along with Scott Schanuel of Belleville Economic Progress, Inc., and R.C. Bush of the Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce.

Although the $75,000 will be key to initiate work with the manufacturers in the region, parts of the discussion centered around future funding for continuing long-term efforts. The federal government has earmarked $1.7 billion dollars for the "Defense Reinvestment for Economic Growth Initiative."

These are funds that will be available to states and various partnerships for the purpose of assisting industry to modernize, to improve competitiveness and to convert from defense-oriented production to commercial production. Mager stated, "Our efforts to provide this kind of manufacturing assistance on a regional basis will be key to positioning Southwestern Illinois to be eligible for federal funding."

Also at the meeting, the importance of funding from the State of Illinois for industrial modernization was discussed. Without the state funding, there will not be matching dollars to apply for the federal money. The Alliance for Southwestern Illinois Manufacturing Service plans to hold a meeting in May with state legislators and key industry people. They will discuss reasons why the allocation of state funds is critical to future economic growth of Illinois.

In addition to working with area manufactures, the Growth Association will be working with Illinois officials in planning a state-wide grant from the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) to develop a manufacturing extension service model. The Growth Association will be interfacing with business leaders to determine how a manufacturing extension service program would best meet the needs of Southwestern Illinois' industry.

Madrigal Singers at Shrine Sunday

The world-renowned Philippine Madrigal Singers will provide the music for the 11:30 a.m. liturgy on Sunday, April 25, at the Church of Our Lady of the Snows.

The Philippine Madrigal Singers consists mostly of music students at the University of the Philippines; however, some members are drawn from diverse disciplines such as business, architecture, psychology, engineering, computer science and medicine, all sharing a common enthusiasm and love of music.

The group's repertoire covers a wide range of styles and forms: Renaissance music, classics, Filipino and international folksongs, contemporary music, sacred music, Afro-American spirituals, avant garde, opera and popular music.

In 1992 the Philippine Madrigal Singers completed its sixth international concert tour covering Italy, Germany, Belgium, Spain, France, Slovenija, Thailand and Brunei Darussalam.

The group also participated in the World Exposition in Seville, and in the 10th anniversary celebration of the International Federation for Choral Music, a network of the major choirs and choral music authorities of the world.

For additional information, call Gary Beckmann, director of liturgy, at 397-6700 (TTY).

SIUE to alter placement testing policy in fall

Effective fall term, Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville will amend its placement testing for new undergraduate students.

The amended policy will require that some, but not all first-time freshman and transfer students who have earned fewer than 16 semester hours of credit elsewhere to take placement testing prior to placement in mathematics, English languages and academic development courses. Previously, all first-time freshman and transfer students with less than 16 semester hours of academic credit were required to take the tests.

Placement in mathematics, English and academic development courses will be based on a combination of factors including college entrance examination (ACT) scores, high school class rank and coursework, and/or results of placement tests.

Entering students who present sufficient class rank, completion of high school course pattern requirements in English and mathematics, and ACT scores at or above an established level will be exempt from testing and will be immediately placed in required general education courses.

Additional information concerning the amended placement-testing policy may be obtained by contacting Eugene Magac, university director of school and college relations at 692-2928.

National Library Week April 18-24

"Libraries Change Lives" is this year's theme for National Library Week, April 18-24.

The Granite City Public Library District is encouraging area residents to use this week to rediscover the wealth of resources available at the library, to return overdue materials, and, at the same time, to help the needy.

During National Library Week no fines will be charged for overduc materials when they are returned to the library accompanied by a donation of at leas one can of food.

The food will be given to a local agency for distribution to those in need. This offer is good only during National Library Week and only for material returned in person to library personnel at the Granite City main and branch libraries.

National Library Week is a good time to apply for a library card or to renew an expired card. The main library, 2001 Delmar Ave., is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday. The branch library, 2145 Johnson Road, is open 12:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, and 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Thursday through Saturday.

Family copes with 2-year-old's rare illness

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

A few months ago, David Holifield was walking, talking and making the same attempts at feeding himself that most 2-year-olds do.

David can no longer do any of those things. He can't stand or sit without help, and he will never again eat one of the McDonald's hamburgers that he once enjoyed.

In recent weeks, the Troy toddler has weakened so much that he can no longer hold his own head up, and his mother fears that his vision is now deteriorating.

"I think he lost most of his eyesight in one day," Barbara Holifield said. "It's like it just turned off. He cried for two days, but I think he's getting used to it now."

The ordeal for young David and his family began more than a year ago. Barbara Holifield and her husband Dean began noticing that David, who had been walking for months, began grabbing furniture for support.

After consulting a series of doctors and specialists, the final diagnosis came Dec. 29: metachromatic leukodystrophy. The rare metabolic disease attacks the myelin sheath, a covering around the central nervous system. The damage results in the loss of motor and other vital functions, reducing the body to a vegetative state.

"I never dreamed it could be this serious," Barbara Holifield said.

The illness is one of eight leukodystrophies, one of which attracted national attention with the movie "Lorenzo's Oil." In fact, the Holifields have spoken with Lorenzo's father, Augusto Odone, who is heading up "The Myelin Project."

The project involves research into rebuilding the lost myelin that would not only help leukodystrophy patients but those with multiple sclerosis and Parkinson's disease as well.

Holifield supports that project and anything that can be done to further research for the illness for which there is neither treatment nor a cure.

"I just can't believe they can't do anything," Holifield said. "We can put a man on the moon yet these children are still dying."

Asleep in his crib, David appears as healthy as any other tot. But when Holifield picks up her son, his tiny legs are stretched out stiff before him, his arms curled tightly against his chest. He immediately begins to cry.

"Hi, honey," Holifield says, brushing David's damp red hair away from his face. "Oh, you're all tightened up again."

Just hours before, David had undergone an intense physical therapy session during which a pediatric therapist instructed David's nurse on techniques. This therapy and painkillers are the only relief David has.

That's why David's father Dean has been dodging raindrops to expand the deck of the family's home to accommodate a hot tub. The water will also help alleviate David's pain, Holifield said.

"And it's going to get worse," Holifield said. "The cramping is going to get so severe — and I'm not just talking leg cramps — it's entire body cramps. I don't want to see them pump all that dope into him but I don't want to see him in pain either."

It's just one of the tough decisions the family will have to make. The others include having a feeding tube surgically implanted (David is barely able to swallow even pureed food) and making funeral arrangements.

"We could lose him any time," Holifield said. "But I don't want it to seem like we've completely given up on him."

That's why the family is trying to give David every opportunity and neither his parents nor his siblings April, 18, and Michael, 11, can stand to leave him. Dean Holifield's employers, Mississippi River Transmission Co., have been very supportive of giving him time off to spend with his son.

The Holifields have each other but the last few months have still been difficult.

"I want him to fall off a bike and scrape his knees. I want him to hate brussels sprouts, get yelled at by the best of teachers, learn to swim," Holifield said. "And that's just not going to happen. He's just too little to be fighting this stuff."

David now has a puppy named "Mouse" and he will get to go to prom — about 14 years early. His sister April, 16, is a senior at Triad High School where David will attend the May 1 event as her special guest.

"She wants him to get a tux and everything," Holifield said. "I think it's hysterical."

Holifield said a lot of the family's strength has come from the outpouring of generosity from those who have heard of David's plight. Holifield had told a reporter that she needed a rocker because David loves to be held and rocked. Within a few days of a newspaper story, David had one.

"The furniture store truck just rolled up and there it was," Holifield said. "We don't know who sent it."

David has also received prayer cloths, stuffed animals and other toys.

"There's a lot of bad in the world, but there are so many good, kind and caring people out there," Holifield said. "Nobody can tell me otherwise."

The Troy Area Jaycees will held a benefit barbecue for David Saturday at the BANK of Edwardsville parking lot in Troy.

The Troy Kiwanis are collecting money for the Holifields in containers at businesses around the city. Donations may also be sent to: David's Fund, P.O. Box 262, Troy, Ill., 62294.

Plan to auction license plates delayed

SPRINGFIELD — A legislative proposal to auction lower-numbered license plates has been taken off the block by its sponsor.

Rep. Rod Blagojevich, D-Chicago, said he decided to place his bill in interim study for consideration next spring after it was evident it did not have the votes to get out of the House Constitutional Officers Committee and would have died.

Blagojevich had proposed that plates numbered one through 10,000 be revoked from current owners and auctioned through sealed bids.

Traditionally, lower-numbered plates have been awarded by the Secretary of State's Office to people with political connections.

Blagojevich proposed putting the auction revenue into the Invest in Illinois Fund that would make low-interest loans to small businesses.

"With respect to these licenses plates, it is a question now of who you know and I think all of the people should have an equal right to bid on them," he said.

Blagojevich said he believed some people would be willing to bid a substantial amount of money to get the lower-numbered plates as a prestige symbol.

Although Secretary of State George Ryan did not take a position on the bill, his spokesman Mike Murphy called the legislation "intriguing but it might be difficult to administer."

Murphy said it has been traditional for people to keep lower-numbered plates as long as they wanted and were allowed to pass them down to other family members after an owner's death.

The plates with five digits or less are given out at the secretary of state's discretion when they become available.

Recalling all the outstanding plates in the group and issuing new ones may not be cost efficient, Murphy added.

Blagojevich acknowledged his bill was not popular with those who had the clout or family connections to get a lower-numbered plate at the regular price. He noted one of his best campaign workers was fuming over the bill because he didn't want to give up his plate.

The No. 1 plate is held by Dorothy Ogilvie, the widow of former Gov. Richard Ogilvie.

Global economy to be discussed at SIUE session

Offered by the Office of Continuing Eduation, the non-credit Great Decisions series meets on Wednesdays in the Mississippi Room of the University Center from 9:50 until 11:30 a.m.

Great Decisions is sponsored nationally by the Foreign Policy Association, a nonpartisan, non-profit, independent organization devoted to world affairs education for the general public.

The purpose of the series is to help persons gain a better understanding of significant issues in U.S. foreign policy and to stimulate constructive and informed citizen participation in world affairs.

Registration is $1 for individual programs. A book, which provides background reading material on each of the topics, is optional, but highly recommended.

The book is available through the SIUE Book Store for $11.72.

Families to be focus of counseling conference

By Terry Edelmann
Staff writer

Today's families will be under the microscope as Provident Counseling sponsors an all-day conference, "Our Resilient Families: Survival and Beyond," from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. April 30 at the Marriott Pavilion Hotel in St. Louis.

Kathleen Buescher, president and chief executive officer of Provident, said the topic is a natural for the agency's annual conference.

"We're a family service agency and our mission is to respond to needs," she said.

Buescher said today's families are beset with a host of problems including drugs, violence and the threat of AIDS. But she said family problems aren't new.

"A lot of adults grew up in oppressive families," she said.

People come for counseling because they're having problems with their family life or at work, she said. But often the problems have roots in the person's childhood.

But she acknowledged today's families are facing more complex, stickier problems. And she said the conference, aimed primarily at social workers, counselors and other professionals who work with families, will offer suggestions on how to help today's families survive and flourish.

Speakers at the conference will be:

- St. Louis police Col. Clarence Harmon, chief of the St. Louis Police Department.
- Robert Coles, professor of psychiatry and medical humanities at Harvard University.
- Steven J. Wolin and Sybil Wolin, co-directors of Project Resilience. Steven Wolin also is clinical professor of psychiatry at George Washington University and Sybil Wolin is a clinical developmental psychologist.
- Alvin Poussaint, professor of psychiatry and associate dean for student affairs at Harvard University.
- Carol Beck, principal at Thomas Jefferson High School in New York City.

Harmon may seem an unlikely choice for a conference on this matter, but he said there is a strong link between the breakdown in traditional family structure and problems with the law.

"You've got less crime when there are cohesive families," he said. "It's extremely difficult for one-parent families to raise their children, especially with meager means. A lot of gang members come from one-parent families."

Harmon said the police often become the "arbiter of last result" when young people get into trouble.

"We bring Johnny home, talk to his parents," Harmon said. "We counsel kids about truancy and drug problems. We notify parents if we find out their child is in a gang."

Harmon said his talk is going to concentrate on ways to bolster the family, ways to encourage families to better educate their children and to do the things that historically worked.

Poussaint said his presentation will concentrate on ways to encourage more effective parenting.

"My message is that the family is changing," Poussaint said. "We have to be more concerned about children. And we need for schools to require young people to take courses in child development and parenting."

Sybil Wolin said her presentation will concern research she and her husband recently had published which shows how children growing up in troubled families actually can develop great coping strategies and resilience.

The cost to attend the conference is $60 before April 23, and $65 after that date. To attend only the luncheon, which includes a keynote speech by Coles, costs $30. Continuing education credit is available from the session.

For more information call (314) 371-6500.

The conference is co-sponsored by The Suburban Journals, radio station KMOX-AM (1120), Anheuser-Busch Cos., Ralston-Purina Co. and The St. Louis American.

Bill would expand regional school superintendents' jobs

SPRINGFIELD — Legislation to expand the jobs of regional school superintendents has passed the House.

The superintendents won a 72-28 victory Tuesday when the House voted to abolish the 18 Educational Service Centers operated by the State Board of Education and give their duties to the 54 regional superintendents.

The superintendents took the offensive when State Superintendent of Schools Robert Leininger and the state board proposed abolishing the regional superintendents' offices.

Leininger wants to replace them with 31 new superintendents elected by local school district members. Regional superintendents are elected by the voters.

The bill supported by the state board is pending before the Senate.

The sponsor of the House bill, Rep. Joel Brunsvold, D-Moline, argued it would be politically impractical to eliminate the regional superintendents. "Politically I don't think we can eliminate the regional superintendents — they have local support," he said.

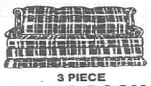

He argued the bill would save up to $4 million of the current cost of operating the state educational service centers. "If we're going to eliminate a layer of government the regional superintendents who are elected officials will do a better job," he said.

The bill was opposed by most major business organizations, which backed the state board's plan. They argued the regional superintendents' offices are inefficient.

Tips from Frank's experts on Herb Gardening
for zest, flavor and aroma!
FRANK'S® NURSERY & CRAFTS
Where Beautiful Things Begin

Throughout history, people have used herbs for medicines, dyes, perfumes and food enhancers. Most people today visit their local pharmacy for headache remedies and fragrances rather than concoct their own, but herbs are still widely used to add zest to favorite dishes.

Herbs (pronounced "erbs" in the United States, "herbs" in Great Britain) are very easy to grow and make a great addition to a vegetable garden. Plus, many of them are good companions for vegetable plants; some are said to ward off certain pests. Colorful and fragrant herbs, like chamomile, lavender and hyssop, add beauty to flower gardens.

Just like vegetables, herbs need full sun for at least 6 hours every day. Sunlight helps leaves produce the desired flavorful and fragrant oils. Most herbs aren't fussy about soil as long as it's well-drained. Mints, parsley and catnip are exceptions and do well in moist areas and partial shade. Herbs are also excellent for growing in containers.

To plant herbs, prepare the soil, sow seed and transplant seedlings just like you would for a vegetable garden. Here are a few tips:

- Once established, most herbs tolerate dryness. But for best growth, water plants during dry periods.
- Apply moderate amounts of plant food; overfeeding causes low oil content in leaves.
- Mulch the ground to keep the soil moist and block out weeds.
- During winter, protect perennial herbs, such as lavender, rosemary and tarragon, with a covering of straw, pine bark or evergreen boughs.
- Removing portions of stems (pinching) in spring and summer keeps herb plants compact and bushy. Begin pinching when plants are 6 inches tall and continue to do so after every 4 to 6 inches of new growth.

Herbs without flavor and fragrance are about as appealing as a cone without ice cream. To preserve and protect these essentials, here are a few harvesting and drying tips to keep your herbs at their aromatic best.

- Harvest leafy herbs just before the flower buds open, when they are most flavorful.
- Pick herbs on dry, sunny mornings just after the dew has dried.
- Trim off sprigs on perennial herbs like tarragon and rosemary, three or four times during the growing season. Remove only one-third of the leafy growth at any one time, leaving enough foliage to produce future crops and still allow the plant to survive the winter.
- Always harvest seed when it is fully mature; the color usually changes from green to brown.
- After harvesting, rinse herbs in water to remove any soil or debris, and gently pat them dry with a paper towel.
- To keep herbs flavorful, always dry them in a warm, well-ventilated area out of direct sunlight.
- To dry long-stemmed herbs, tie them together and hang upside down.
- Dry seeds, flowers and sprigs on a flat screen that is slightly raised.

Proper storage of herbs is also necessary in order to keep their flavor and fragrance. Here are a few tips:

- Always store herbs in air-tight containers such as cans or glass jars. Cardboard or paper bags absorb oils and should not be used.
- Keep storage containers away from light, moisture and heat.
- Some leafy herbs, such as parsley, basil and mint, can be frozen. Harvest leaves, rinse them with water and pat dry. Promptly place the leaves in plastic bags and freeze them.

incumbent Supervisor Richard "Popeye" Paterson and Madison Alderman Andy Economy as well as independent trustee candidate Ruby Johnson.

Voter turnout in Venice Tuesday morning was called about normal, but poll workers there predicted a larger-than-normal turnout by the end of the day because of the contested mayoral race and the Venice Township competition.

In Venice, incumbent Mayor Tyrone Echols was challenged by Venice Alderman Michael Terrell and two aldermanic races also drew competition.

"We aim to please," Fanning said.

"There's a written job description, but there's no way you could put them on paper all the things Donna does," Cruse said.

Fanning, 55, wears a number of hats in the reception area to Cruse's office on the third floor of City Hall.

She makes the coffee and entertains visitors waiting to see the mayor. She types memos and enters data into a computer. She is the vital link between the mayor and his department heads. She keeps the mayor's business and social calendar.

And she answers the telephone.

"You could say she is the number one public relations person for our city government," Cruse said.

"She's the first person somebody talks to when they want to speak with the mayor, to our economic development director or to the city attorneys.

"When people have a problem, they want to talk to the mayor. Maybe half of the people who call don't really need to talk to me.

"If someone calls about their sewer backing up, she is the first one they talk to. And she's always pleasant and always ready to help people with their problems," Cruse said.

Sometimes, Fanning takes calls that might be better placed somewhere else.

"A man called recently and asked where he could buy a hat in Granite City. He said he had to go to a funeral later in the day and needed a hat," she said.

"A lot of people call and ask things like where they can get their car tested for emissions and where the driver's license examining station is located.

"Others call to inquire about assistance for the homeless or where they can get food," Fanning said.

"I love it. I love the variety and I love helping people resolve their problems.

"When somebody calls on a Friday afternoon to say that their sewer is backing up, they can have a real problem. But I can relate to that. We do all we can to help them get their problem solved," she said.

Fanning came to work for the city on May 8, 1985, shortly after Cruse was elected mayor. For the 20 years prior to that, she had been a legal secretary. Cruse stole her away from the St. Louis law firm of Coburn and Croft.

"One of the reasons I left (work in) St. Louis is that I deal with (people in) the whole county — people I've lived with," she said.

Fanning's employment could well end next month. A new mayor will be taking office May 4.

But she is glad to have had the opportunity to serve the city, and especially her boss.

"Von Dee has been an excellent boss. He's a very kind person and he's been very good to me. he's never made an unreasonable request."

Health but these are infrequent.

In addition, the lack of a county inspector makes it harder for local officials to track outbreaks like those at the Alton Taco Bell last month. In that incident, there was one confirmed case of hepatitis A and another suspected case among employees.

"I can't remember the last time a state inspector came through. It's been more than two or three years," said Mark Wilke, manager of the Golden Corral Family Steakhouse in Alton.

A spokeswoman for the Hardee's fast-food chain said inspections by local authorities are "absolutely necessary."

The corporation owns its own food-packaging plants and publishes a 400-page manual for employees on how food should be stored and handled, said Hardee's Maureen Bridges.

Local inspectors would be able to make sure those guidelines are lived up to and ensure proper food handling in restaurants with less stringent controls, Bridges said.

Roland DeGregorio, owner of the Pasta House Co. and Savannah's restaurants in Alton, also said he was in favor of county inspectors.

"There's no doubt we need them. Most people are shocked to hear we don't have them," DeGregorio said.

"Most restaurant owners I've talked to are for it. But if we're going to do it, let's do it right and hire someone qualified, not some political appointee."

Small town leaders need to wise up, rural economist says

(The following column is provided by Rosalynne Harty of Copley News Service)

It's time for small towns to wise up, according to rural economics specialist Amy Glasmeier.

"My concern is that we need to make 'smart towns' where local developers, bankers, local mayors, local planners and community citizens need to know a lot more about how their larger employers work and the kind of problems they have," Glasmeier told a gathering of rural development experts from around Illinois.

Glasmeier encouraged the 300 community leaders who recently attended the Rural Community Development Conference to reverse the usual process of encouraging business growth.

"Economic development right now is delivered most often from the top down," from state agencies, she said. "The money filters down, policy filters down, strategy filters down to the local level."

But local leaders know more about what's going on in local business than state officials — or should, Glasmeier said. "It's at the local level where the intelligence gathering is happening, where the people are."

What needs to happen is more communication between the local and state levels, she said.

Community colleges are in a unique position to help fill that gap and contribute to economic development across the state, said Carey Isreal, executive director of the Illinois Community College Board.

"I'd like to say we're like Wal-Mart — we have this great distribution system," Isreal said, who was also one of the conference speakers. "We're in every nook and cranny."

This spring, community colleges around the state will be actively asking for advice from the towns they serve, Isreal said. "Help us prioritize what's important," especially in terms of helping local businesses, he said.

Touring the state, Isreal said he couldn't help but notice that even in towns where libraries are dying and community colleges and other schools are struggling for funds, video rental stores seem to be popping up on every street corner.

"We have to decided whether we're simply going to be consumers and sit at home and be entertained, or be educated," he said. "That's the linchpin of economic development."

One area that holds promise for creating jobs in many small communities is telecommunications, he said, "because geography is inconsequential" when work is done electronically.

The community college board is currently working with the State Board of Higher Education to secure legislative approval of $15 million to begin development of a statewide fiber-optic system that would potentially connect business, schools and colleges, he said.

Earlier, Glasmeier, who co-authored a book on "High-Tech America," cautioned that much of the growth in telecommunications and other high-tech fields has slowed.

Rural leaders might better spend their time concentrating on ensuring the continued presence of branch manufacturing plants of multinational industries in their area, she said. Those companies tend to be "out on the interstate" and probably run by managers who are not local people, she said.

"We have to figure out who they are and how we can work with them to make sure they're competitive in the world market in the long run," she said. These plants often offer better-paying jobs with benefits than the growing retail businesses that so many town went after in recent years, she said.

Community leaders from across Illinois come to the annual community development conference to compare notes on ways to create new jobs and stem the flow of young people from their towns, said Norman Walzer, director of the Illinois Institute for Rural Affairs at Western Illinois University. The institute co-sponsors the conference with Rural Partners and the Governor's Rural Affairs Council.

"Of 76 non-metropolitan counties (in Illinois) in the 1980s, 70 lost population," in the last decade, Walzer said. "Of the cities below a thousand, roughly three-quarters lost population. So we're looking at a significant negative population trend in the rural parts of the state."

Among the topics at the conference were a Nebraska community that organized a non-profit micro-loan program for business development; school-business partnerships in Colorado; and the "smart park" created in Effingham, which tied the city's industrial park into the super-computer at the University of Illinois.

"We're trying to bring the best ideas anywhere in the country to this group of people," Walzer said.

Welding class to be offered here

Belleville Area College will offer Qualification and Certification Procedures for Welding Inspectors on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 1:10 p.m. at the Granite City Campus, 4950 Maryville Road, beginning April 24.

The course ends on July 10, about one week before the Qualification and Certification of Welding Inspectors Exam.

The 12-week course is designed to prepare individuals to earn the AWS (American Welding Society) Certification, the welding inspector's most valuable symbol of professional achievement and standing.

Tuition for BAC district residents for the three-credit course is $96; $318 for out-of-district residents; and $408 for out-of-state residents. Course textbooks cost about $250 and will be distributed at the first class. First-time BAC students will be required to pay a one-time $10 application fee.

Early enrollment is advised. To register, call 235-2700, ext. 455 or toll-free (in Illinois) 1-800-BAC-5131, ext. 455. For more information, contact Garner Kimbrell, coordinator of the Welding Technology Program, at 235-2700, ext. 378, or Tracy at ext. 252.

Plants in baskets add color to homes

By Robert J. Dingwall
Correspondent

Everyone has an area in his or her home where hanging baskets of plants can add color. With proper care such plants can flower freely all summer.

Baskets of impatiens, begonias, caladiums and coleus do well in shade, while petunias, ivy and zonal geraniums and lantanas all do well in full sun. Fuchsias do best in a spot that gets some shade during the middle of the day.

Don't wait for plants in baskets to wilt before watering, as this can harm them. Flowers in baskets do best if you never let them wilt. They will dry out faster than garden plants, because they are exposed to more wind and warmer temperatures. Under normal conditions 10-inch flowering baskets can use about 32 fluid ounces of water per day. This may mean watering daily.

Water thoroughly. If the soil and plants dry out too much, the soil will shrink and allow water to quickly run down the inside of the basket and out the drainage holes — fooling you into thinking that you have watered enough.

Check the baskets regularly and when watering, the basket should be heavy — about 7 to 9 pounds. If when lifting the basket it seems light, repeat watering in 15 minutes, or take the basket down and soak it in a tub of water for about 10 minutes to wet the soil thoroughly.

Plants in baskets that grow well but begin to show yellow leaves and/or poor flowering indicate you need to feed heavier with a liquid fertilizer. A good start is to place about 2 tablespoons of a slow-release fertilizer such as osmocote on the surface of the soil.

This will release some fertilizer each time it is watered. The next step is to use a liquid fertilizer such as 20-20-20 following label directions for dilution, and water with this every second week. Make sure soil is moist when applying the liquid fertilizer to avoid burning the roots.

Keep in mind that if a little fertilizer is good, a lot is not better. Too much fertilizer can burn or damage plants.

With proper watering and feeding, your plants will flower well. So all you will need to do is remove dead blooms or seed pods to keep them looking well. If they tend to get leggy, trim them back to remove some of the extra growth. Do this to part of the basket one week, complete the balance a week later and plants will flower well all season.

Take time to learn how to care for plants in baskets and enjoy them.

Chemistry sizzles and pops in the kitchen

By Janice Denham
Staff writer

With all those H2O molecules changing from ice to water, ascorbic acid keeping apples white and carbon dioxide popping out of cans, it is a wonder a chemist gets any cooking done in the kitchen at all.

Kitchen chemistry is at the heart of all cooking and eating. It keeps ice floating in lemonade, puffs strange mixtures of flour and baking powder into birthday cake, and fuels a person's body with food.

Suzanne Saum and Kit Mao, chemistry professors at Lindenwood College, told teenage girls at the 10th annual Expanding Your Horizons in Science and Mathematics Conference at St. Louis Community College-Forest Park that science is all around them in the kitchen.

At the workshop, one of 16 designed by the Math/Science Network of Greater St. Louis to expose young women to career fields in those areas, the professors gave the girls a taste of what a scientist goes through in developing some foods, like diet cola, made with new sweeteners.

When they dropped a can of diet Coke in water, it floated, but a can of classic Coke dropped into a pan of water sank. This is because a pinch of sweetener has hundreds of times the sweetness of table sugar, so it takes much less of it to create the same amount of sweetness. Following this line of thinking, a kitchen-chemist does not get the same results from a cake made with sweetener instead of granulated sugar, because the sweetener is not as dense and does not take up the same quantity of space.

Carbon dioxide is more than just a puff of gas when it is in the right place at the right time, too, Mao and Saum showed later in their laboratory. That is what bubbles out of a can of soda when it is opened to release the pressure. When it is released in bread or cake, the batter rises.

Essentially, both baking powder and baking soda are sodium bicarbonate, but baking powder also has potassium aluminum sulfate in it, which gives it an edge toward being a little more acidic. Because baking soda has less acid, it needs a slightly more acidic ingredient, like buttermilk or sour cream, to help activate it.

"When you heat the bicarbonate, the active ingredients form carbon dioxide. The rest of the cake ingredients trap the gases, so it rises," Mao says.

To make bread, the fermentation process uses yeast instead of sodium bicarbonate. Flour does not move the fermentation along quickly, so sugar is added to hasten the process. Once again, the carbon dioxide is trapped and the bread rises.

Keeping a box of baking soda handy in the kitchen as a fire extinguisher follows a similar principle. Heat — in this case from the fire — releases carbon dioxide in the baking soda and extinguishes the flame, which needs oxygen to burn.

Saum likes to use an experiment on cucumbers or carrots in class.

"This is a good example of osmosis," she says. "Pickling makes the water come out. Cells that make up the pickles are semi-permeable, that is, water can pass through, but other things can't," she says.

When a carrot is placed in plain water, it stays the same. When it is set in a jar of salt water, water from the vegetable passes out trying to dilute the salt, but the salt does not move in. Thus, like a cucumber that turns into a pickle, a carrot shrinks.

"This is a prime example of osmotic pressure. After all, do you think they grow cucumbers that size?" she asks her classes, when they look at pickles.

Osmosis is the scientific term for the principle whereby a flavor or odor is absorbed through an egg shell by the rest of the egg.

One of Mao's favorites — hardly a fast food — is Chinese salted eggs. The eggs are soaked in salted water one to two months, so the salt flavor permeates the shell, then they are boiled and served. To speed the process, she says, vinegar is used because the acid helps thin the shell.

Varying the boiling temperature of water produces different results for food that comes to the table.

"Most people think adding salt to water makes water boil quicker, but that's not true. It actually boils at a higher temperature, so it takes longer to get to that boiling temperature, but then cooks quicker once it is brought up to that temperature," Saum says.

Mao adds, "That is why a salty stew is more tender, because it is cooked at a higher temperature. I always have found green beans to be more tender if I fry them in oil, which has a higher boiling temperature, too."

They say that food cooked in a pressure cooker is exceptionally tender because the temperature of the steam actually is higher than the normal 100° Centigrade.

Conversely, at high altitudes, water boils at a lower temperature, so the temperature does not get as high, and longer cooking is necessary. High-altitude directions on a cake mix sometimes suggest baking at a hotter oven temperature to counteract this.

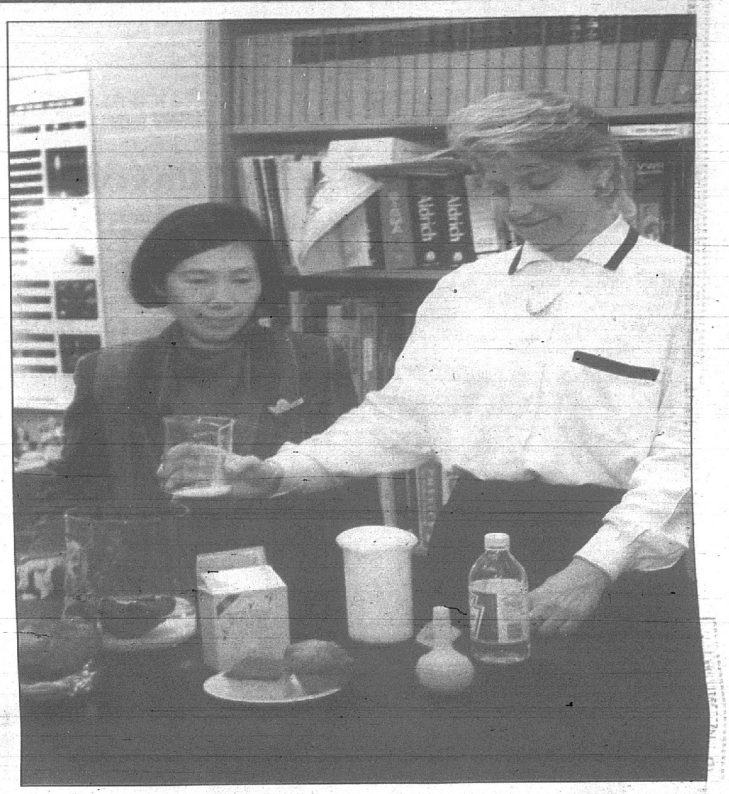

The freezing point also can be varied. For instance, when salt is added to ice, the freezing point is lowered, which makes homemade ice cream freeze better.

Mao tested the theory that tea acts as a buffer for the stomach. She added lemon juice, as a substitute for gastric acid, to tea and found the acidity stayed at about the same level as it was without the lemon juice. She added juice to coffee and again there was no change. However, when the juice was added to water, the acid level jumped up to the level of the juice. The moral of the story seemed to be that the acid from a cup of tea — or coffee — plus stomach acid would not add up to a total of the two.

While a kitchen chemist can take weak acids like lemon juice and vinegar as part of the everyday pantry, there are stronger acids around the house that should not be underrated for their harmful effects when used incorrectly.

"We don't think about the damage toilet bowl cleaners can do until they get into your eye," Mao says.

She and Saum echoed the warning found on the cleaners' label against mixing the cleaners with any bleach. They said the mixture will produce a very hot reaction — right in the toilet bowl.

Suzanne Saum and Kit Mao, chemistry professors at Lindenwood College, demonstrate some results of chemical reactions that occur every day in the kitchen. Saum elicits a rush of bubbles full of carbon dioxide when she mixes household vinegar (an acid) with baking soda (sodium bicarbonate) diluted in water. The same rush takes place when baking soda is heated with other ingredients and the carbon dioxide is liberated, but then it is trapped by flour and eggs and rises to create cake or muffins.

taste + chemistry = Asparagus

Chemical reactions in the kitchen, like using heat to change the texture of cheese so it melts and meshes with other flavors, are done intuitively, once a cook learns some of these techniques.

Range tops replace Bunsen burners, flasks are turned in for bowls and measuring spoons displace droppers. The standard used — a recipe — is altered without verification or apology, according to a cook's interest, imagination and knowledge of cooking.

The sensory enjoyment of food is hard to measure. Asparagus is a vegetable whose popularity is hard to explain. Scientific terminology does not explain why, when the history of the world is written, those who love springtime vegetables will list it at the top. Perhaps absence makes the palate grow fonder, because its fresh form must be anticipated for long periods of the year.

Here it is baked atop a cheese-and-salmon combination. This is the time of year to enjoy it with abandon, not to worry how many times the food-pleasure meter rings the bell, because no one can measure the enjoyment of food like the person who is eating it at that moment.

An assortment of easy-to-prepare English muffin recipes, such as this idea for Spring Muffin Quiche, is available in a free recipe folder. To receive one, write to: "Brunch With Bays," Bays Home Service Institute, 500 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 200, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Spring muffin quiche

1 pkg. (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup (8 oz.) grated Monterey Jack cheese
2 tbsp. (2 oz.) crumbled blue cheese
3 oz. chopped smoked salmon, partially cooked bacon or smoked sausage
1 cup chopped fresh asparagus, blanched, or frozen, thawed
¼ cup diced red bell pepper
1 tbsp. snipped fresh dill or ½ tsp. dried dill weed
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
6 English muffins, split
18 slices bacon, uncooked

Preheat oven to 375°. Cover baking sheet with layer of aluminum foil.

In food processor or mixer, beat cream cheese and eggs together until blended. Stir in cheeses, salmon, asparagus, red pepper, dill, salt and pepper.

Arrange muffin halves in single layer on prepared baking sheet. Spoon about ¼ cup quiche mixture onto each. Wrap each muffin half perimeter with 1½ slices bacon, securing ends with toothpicks. Bake in preheated oven 25 to 30 minutes until top is lightly browned.

Let stand 5 minutes before serving. Remove toothpicks. Garnish with fresh dill, if desired. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Makes 6 servings.

Spring into new eating step with sandwiches before salads

Spring is in the air. That means Americans are ready for a seasonal change in their diet. Right now, the comfort foods of winter seem stuffy, yet summer salads are a little too drastic for a seasonal change.

Enter fresh pork cutlets, which lend themselves to quick meals that gradually break away from traditional heavy foods of winter.

Treat them like an extra-thin chop. They should be ⅛- to ¼-inch thick. Cutlets can be pounded or flattened gently with the palm of a hand to achieve this thickness. They cook in a flash and can be adapted to a wide variety of occasions, from elegant to relaxed.

Sauteing them is like preparing fast food. To cut fat in sauteed pork cutlets, use 1 to 2 teaspoons butter instead of the usual 2 to 4 tablespoons. To prevent sticking, stir the meat more often. Another helpful option is to use a nonstick skillet or nonstick cooking spray to reduce or eliminate the need for extra fat.

To learn more about cooking with fresh pork, a free brochure, "The Shape of Meals to Come," is available by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: The Shape of Meals to Come, National Pork Producers Council, P.O. Box 10383, Des Moines, Iowa 50306.

Lighten up attitude and flavor, but hold emphasis on chocolate

Daylight hours are increasing, cheering people as they realize that springtime is here to stay. For many, it also is time to spring into action with resolutions to follow a lower-calorie, lower-fat eating plan.

Cheer up. That does not require giving up chocolate desserts.

It is possible to have your cake and eat it too, with these luscious and easy-to-prepare chocolate desserts. They are made with cocoa, a deep dark chocolate baking ingredient that is naturally low in fat with less than one gram fat per tablespoon, is very low in sodium, and is cholesterol-free. Cocoa is the only chocolate baking ingredient allowed by the American Heart Association and the National Cholesterol Education Program.

Cocoa comes in two varieties and both are easy to use. Choose European-style "dutched" cocoa for darker color and more mellow chocolate flavor, or unsweetened cocoa for a rich deep chocolate flavor. These recipes can be made with either type.

These light chocolate desserts have a bonus because they also are easy to prepare.

Light and Easy Chocolate Cheese-Filled Angel Cake has a name that is almost longer than its ingredient list. Just plan one day ahead to let the yogurt drain in the refrigerator to catch its solids. The result, a yogurt cheese, mixes easily and quickly with other ingredients to make a delicious filling and frosting for angel food cake which can be bought or made from a mix. Light and Easy Fruited Chocolate Mousse is prepared in minutes in a blender.

Light and easy chocolate cheese-filled angel cake

½ cup yogurt cheese (see note)
1 (10 inch) white angel food cake
⅓ cup sugar
3 tbsp. cocoa
2 tbsp. hot water
1½ tsp. vanilla, divided
1 envelope (1.3 oz.) whipped topping mix
½ cup cold skim milk

Cut angel food cake in 3 horizontal layers.

In small bowl, stir together sugar, cocoa and hot water until smooth. Stir in 1 teaspoon vanilla. Stir in yogurt cheese until well blended.

Prepare whipped topping mix as directed on package, using ½ cup milk and remaining ½ teaspoon vanilla. Fold into cocoa mixture.

Spread cocoa mixture between layers and on top and side of cake. Cover. Refrigerate.

Note: To make yogurt cheese, use 1 carton (8 ounces) plain nonfat yogurt, no gelatin added. Line non-rusting colander or sieve with large coffee filter. Place over deep bowl. Spoon yogurt into prepared colander. Cover with plastic wrap. Refrigerate about 12 hours until liquid no longer drains. Remove yogurt from colander and discard liquid. Refrigerate.

Makes 18 servings; 120 calories, 3 g protein, 27 g carbohydrate, no fat or cholesterol and 95 mg sodium each.

Light and easy fruited chocolate mousse

1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen strawberries in syrup, thawed, well drained
1 pkg. (3 oz.) strawberry gelatin
¾ cup boiling water
¼ cup cocoa
1 cup ice cubes
½ cup frozen reduced-fat whipped topping, thawed

In blender container, carefully pour boiling water over gelatin. Blend, covered, on low speed until gelatin is completely dissolved.

Add cocoa. Continue blending until smooth. Immediately add ice cubes, blending until melted. Add reserved strawberries and whipped topping. Continue blending just until combined and smooth.

Immediately pour into dessert dishes. Refrigerate about 4 hours until set.

Makes 8 servings; 110 calories, 3 g protein, 21 g carbohydrate, 1.5 g fat, no cholesterol and 30 mg sodium each.

Orange-coconut cake filling

1⅓ cups cold milk
1 envelope whipped topping mix
1 pkg. (4 servings) instant vanilla pudding mix
1 cup flaked coconut
1 tsp. grated orange rind

Pour milk into deep narrow-bottom mixer bowl. Add whipped topping and pudding mixes. Beat slowly until well blended. Gradually increase mixer speed and beat 4 to 6 minutes until mixture forms soft peaks.

Fold in coconut and orange rind. Chill.

Makes 3⅓ cups filling or topping for cake.

Microwave brandied pears

1½ cups water
1½ cups sugar
1 stick cinnamon
3 cardamom seeds or whole cloves
4 fresh pears, peeled, cored, halved
½ cup brandy

In 2-quart microwave-safe dish, combine water, sugar, cinnamon and cardamom. Microwave on high power 5 to 6 minutes until liquid boils vigorously.

Carefully add pears. Microwave on high 4 to 5 minutes, stirring gently after 3 minutes, until pears are tender.

With slotted spoon, remove pears to bowl. Discard spices. Microwave syrup on high 10 to 12 minutes until thickened. Cool.

Pour brandy over pears. Add enough syrup to cover pears. Store up to 3 weeks in refrigerator.

Makes 2 pints.

Cornmeal, ethnic foods promote econômical cooking

By Cynthia Fauser

Cornmeal is a nutritious, low-cost, basic ingredient for any meal of the day. Unfortunately, it is not familiar to many households — including mine.

"Anything that goes with either tomato sauce or maple syrup is not to be trusted" was my family's reaction when I introduced them to polenta, fried cornmeal mush, recently.

More adventurous diners recognize the versatility of cornmeal. It is a staple of Native American dishes. Cookbooks from the South and Civil War era are full of spoonbread, muffin, pancake and cornbread recipes. Italian cooks add ½ cup grated cheese to cornmeal mush or fried mush, and serve it with tomato or meat sauce. The flavors resemble the more recently familiar Mexican tamale pies.

Distrust is a common reaction to new foods among adults as well as small children. I know not every new dish I serve my family will be a hit the first time, but it does not stop me from trying.

New things must become familiar before they are accepted. A family accustomed to hot cereal will enjoy polenta more quickly. My own taste buds have developed a taste for those crispy slices drizzled with syrup. They taste like a cross between hot cereal and French toast.

Besides, hot cereal is much cheaper compared to cold ones. Three servings of cornmeal mush costs as little as seven cents — total! Try to beat that with any cold cereal.

University Extension Service publishes a one-page guide, "Using and Storing Cornmeal." To receive a copy, write to: Cornmeal Guide, University Extension, 121 S. Meramec, Suite 501, Clayton, Mo. 63105.

Here are two recipes from that guide. Time can be saved, when planning to fry it, by making the cornmeal mush the night before, so it has time to chill.

Wise Ways

Recipe

Oriental stir-fry salad

- 1 head iceberg lettuce, cut in bite-size chunks
- Oriental Dressing
- 2 tbsp. oil
- ¾ lb. pork, cut in thin strips
- ¼ lb. fresh snow peas
- ¾ cup sliced carrot
- 1½ cups broccoli florets
- 1 cup sliced onion
- ½ cup sliced water chestnuts
- 2 tbsp. grated orange peel, for garnish

Heat oil in large pan or wok over high heat. Stir-fry pork about 1 minute until brown.

Add pea pods, carrot, broccoli, onion, water chestnuts and Oriental Dressing. Stir-fry 1 to 2 minutes until vegetables are tender-crisp.

Oriental Dressing: Whisk together ¼ cup reduced-sodium soy sauce; ¼ cup rice wine vinegar; 1 clove garlic, minced; 1 tablespoon sugar; ¼ teaspoon red pepper flakes, optional, and 1 teaspoon sesame oil until thoroughly blended. Makes ½ cup.

Cooked cornmeal mush

- 1 cup cornmeal
- 1 cup cold water
- ½ tsp. salt
- 3 cups boiling water

Mix cornmeal, cold water and salt. Slowly stir cornmeal mixture into boiling water in saucepan. Cook and stir until thick. Lower heat. Cook, covered, 15 minutes, stirring as needed to keep from sticking.

Serve with maple syrup, honey or molasses.

Makes three (1-cup) servings; served with 2 tablespoons syrup, 170 calories (2 percent from fat) and 362 mg sodium per serving.

Polenta (Fried Cornmeal Mush): Pour hot mush in loaf pan. Cool until firm. Remove mush from pan. Cut in slices. Brown slices on both sides in greased frying pan.

Mexican meatloaf

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- ¼ green bell pepper, chopped
- 1½ lb. ground beef
- 1 egg
- ½ cup cornmeal
- 2 cups cooked or canned tomatoes
- 1½ tsp. salt
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- ¼ tsp. chili powder

Preheat oven to 350°.

Mix together onion, green pepper, ground beef, egg, cornmeal, tomatoes, salt, pepper and chili powder.

Blend well. Shape into loaf in baking pan.

Bake in preheated oven about 1 hour until browned.

Makes 6 servings; 401 calories, 25 g fat (57 percent from fat), 624 mg sodium and 28 percent U.S. recommended daily allowance of vitamin C.

FOOD

Revive traditional brunch with tropical punch

Whether it is called breakfast or brunch, a quick combination of morning-type foods develops a common cause for inviting friends on the spur of the moment for a quick meal.

Casual and inexpensive, the meal consumes a minimum of time and draws the interest of anyone who enjoys simple, delicious foods contrasting both savory and sweet foods.

Tangy-sweet pineapple adds a new dimension to sausage in this hash recipe. It takes about 10 minutes to prepare and 5 minutes to cook, using only six ingredients.

Pineapple is a handy staple to keep in the pantry. Its tang adds a counterpoint to sweet flavors, yet it provides sweetness to foods like sausage.

Pineapple sausage hash

1 can (8 oz.) crushed pineapple
12 oz. bulk pork sausage, crumbled
1 cup plain yogurt
2 tbsp. brown sugar
2 tsp. Dijon mustard
1 to 2 tbsp. minced green onion, tops only

Drain pineapple, reserving 1 tablespoon juice.

In frying pan, brown sausage. Drain well. Return to pan.

Combine yogurt, brown sugar, mustard and reserved 1 tablespoon juice. Add to pineapple. Cook, stirring, until heated through. Sprinkle with green onion.

Serve with biscuits, English muffins and/or omelets.

Makes 6 servings; 252 calories, 10 g protein, 17 g fat, 15 g carbohydrate, 546 mg sodium and 42 mg cholesterol each.

Microwave can prepare treats for a secretary

Whether the title is "administrative assistant" or "secretary," every organization has a person or persons without whom the place does not function smoothly.

This individual organizes everyone's schedules, answers the phone, does mailings, is the liaison between the company and the public, and often — in his or her own way — runs day-to-day operations.

A simple-to-make, much-appreciated treat is fudge. A milk chocolate variety packed with chopped candy is one delicious version.

In a large glass bowl, cook 1 pound confectioner's sugar, ½ cup chocolate syrup and ½ cup (1 stick) unmelted butter or margarine in a microwave oven on high about 2½ minutes. Beat well. Chop 2 candy bars — Snickers is a good choice, but other varieties can be used — and stir into chocolate mixture. Spread in buttered 9-inch pan. Top with 1 more candy bar, chopped. Press into warm fudge.

Chill in refrigerator 1 hour or in freezer 20 minutes. Cut in squares, place in a pretty box, tie with a ribbon and listen for the sighs of pleasure.

Using a microwave oven to make treats for the secretary results in quick cleanup for the treater and easy, delicious sweets for the receiver. Another benefit is that recipes that are used to make the treat — they always are requested are easy to make.

Home mix puts brownies at fingertips

Winner's Circle

Shirley M. Byington, 113 Burr Oak Drive, Foley, Mo., is the winner of this week's recipe contest for "Our Best Brownies" Brownie Mix. For it she wins a prize of dinner certificates at the Pasta House Company.

Her son, who was 12 at the time, gave her a cookbook for Christmas in 1979 which has this recipe. She remembers when her son would make his own brownies from the mix in the evening when the family wanted a treat. Now she keeps the mix on hand for sharing with his two sons.

Next month's contest calls for recipes for Spring Delights, such as asparagus, strawberries or rhubarb.

Send one recipe per household to: Spring Delights Recipe Contest, 1714 Deer Tracks Trail, St. Louis, Mo. 63131. Recipes will be accepted through April for a possible win in May.

Type or print the recipe legibly on one side of the paper. Include name, address and telephone number on the entry. Name the Journal you receive. Be sure to double-check the recipe as it is written for both amounts and directions, including any variations that make this dish special.

If there is a history to the recipe, it will be considered part of the entry. It will be part of the basis for selecting winners, along with taste and eye appeal. Originality will be considered, although the recipe need not be original. If possible, name the source of the recipe.

Winners are notified by mail. Duplicate entries will be considered on the basis of earlier entry or best compliance with the rules. Contest winners may enter again six months after their prize-winning publication date.

Hearty lunch picks up pace for afternoon's busy activities

Cheese adds a rich and hearty flavor to any sandwich, particularly one that has vegetables and beans for its main ingredients. Putting salad in a pocket is a convenient solution to a problem that occurs at least seven days a week when it is time to figure out what to have for lunch.

The dilemma of finding nutritious, hearty meals for lunch often stems from an old habit of grabbing high-fat leftovers, a sandwich piled high with meat and cheese or even a quick candy bar and soda from the vending machine at work. A "real" lunch sticks to one's ribs when attacking a pile of work in the afternoon.

Those who enjoy piling high the cheese for lunch can take heart that this type of meal need not break the fat budget, even though it may involve gradual changes. Using cheese in smaller quantities or adding a reduced-fat cheese is one way to do it.

Another technique is to make the cheese count. Using a stronger-flavored cheese requires less of it. Use the softness of melted cheese as a contrast to crunchy toppings on pizza, like onion and bell pepper.

Avoid using lots of meat in addition to cheese. Instead, add high-quality protein — like kidney beans, lentils and garbanzo beans — in soups, casseroles or salads.

This salad-sandwich offers three elements for cutting fat and calories. Mediterranean Salad Sandwiches feature fresh vegetables and part-skim mozzarella cheese, tossed with reduced-calorie dressing and beans. The fresh pita pocket is lined with lettuce.

Mediterranean Salad Sandwiches are a breeze to make and a perfect answer to the question of what to serve for a hearty lunch or snack.

Mediterranean salad sandwiches

1 cup (4 oz.) part-skim mozzarella cheese
¼ cup garbanzo beans, drained, rinsed, coarsely chopped
¼ cup green bell pepper strips
¼ cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup red onion rings
¼ cup reduced-calorie zesty Italian salad dressing
2 whole wheat pita breads, cut in half
Leaf lettuce

Toss together cheese, beans, green pepper, mushrooms and onion in salad dressing until thoroughly coated.

For each sandwich, fill bread with lettuce and cheese mixture.

Makes 2 sandwiches; 360 calories, 26 g protein, 35 g carbohydrate, 13 g fat, 35 mg cholesterol and 1,020 mg sodium each.

Variations: Replace garbanzo beans with 2 ounces sliced lean roast beef.

Omit cheese. Increase beans to 1 cup.

It was suggested to send something special to the children of Kathy Lloyd, who passed away.

Entire Chain Of 385 Big Lots And Odd Lots Stores Now Easily Accessible For The Disabled

St. Louis, Mo, April 15, 1993--Consolidated Stores, parent company of Big Lots and Odd Lots, has announced that "Door-Aids®" are now installed in all 385 Odd Lots and Big Lots stores across the country. The nearly $400,000 renovation allows disabled and elderly persons the opportunity to more easily shop at the stores. By simply pushing a button, outside doors now automatically open and close, to permit disabled individuals independent access into the stoes. Older people, mothers carrying small children, and people on crutches will also find Door-Aid helpful. The doors will remain manually operational for the general public.

In many locations, aisles and checkout counter areas will be widened and check writing tables lowered to help maneuverability and make customers more comfortable, once inside the stores.

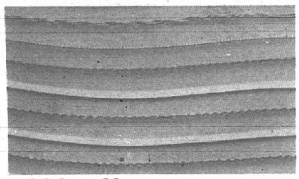

The capital improvement made to the store locations were originally inspired by the American Disabilities Act (ADA), which took effect in January of 1992. The act requires businesses, public buildings and places of public accomodation to remove architectural barriers "in existing facilities where readily achievable." However, there is much uncertainty about how far businesses must go in making their establishments accessible.

Consolidated Stores made the decision to improve access for the disabled chain-wide. "Our goal is for every person to know that they have the opportunity and the ability to independently shop at any one of our Big Lots and Odd Lots stores throughout the country. We hope this helps to demonstrate how seriously we take the rights and needs of this group of consumers," according to William G. Kelley, chairman, president, and chief excutive officer of Consolidated Stores.

As the largest retailer of closeout merchandise in the United States, Consolidated Stores Corporation operates 385 Big Lots and Odd Lots stores and 160 All For One stores in 22 states.

Daughters of Isabella meet

The April Guest Night of Daughters of Isabella, Our Lady of Fatima Circle 835, began with Goldie Coleman offering prayer before the buffet dinner catered by Petri's in the Knights of Columbus Chambers meeting room.

Regent Manning presided over a short meeting, welcomed those in attendance and acknowledged a charter member, Ann Pieper. Ann accepted the Traveling Vocation Crucifix for the month.

A get well card was signed for D of I chaplain, Rev. Casimir Kicmal, who is recuperating from a fall.

An invitation was received from Agnes Kirstein, regent of Sacred Heart Council 237, Highland Concerning their 70th Anniversary Celebration, at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 25, with reception following at Knights of Columbus Hall in Highland.

Sue Lipka, state regent, reminded members about the D or I Convention at the Effingham Ramanda Inn April 23-25 hosted by the Circles of the Springfield Diocese. Regent Manning, Dorothy Hoedebeck and Cecelia Cruse will attend.

Scribe Lucille Caban reported articles in the local press are running behind, but reports good cooperation from the staff.

Mary Gillig, area coordinator, thanked the Circle for having her as a guest, said to keep up the good work and to use the new constitution and manual outlining duty specifications.

There are 61 members in the Circle. A membership roster was given out.

Fifty-fifty was won by Stephanie Rizic, Carol Hendricks and Lucille Caban.

Birthday celebrants were: Anna Mokri, Johanna Bukovac, Anneliese Gyarmati and Evelyn McCollegan.

Principals at Holy Family School and St. Elizabeth School were contacted regarding scholarships to be given.

July Raffle will feature a baby afghan, baby quilt and secret pillow. The December raffle will be a hand embroidered quilt.

Those in attendance in addition to those named above were: Angie Buehler, Anna Giese, Frances Gruber, Mary Horvat, Martha Kozuszek, Margaret Kwiatkowski, Cecelia Manice, Veronica Patrick, Helen Romanic, Ruth Rotter, Eugenia Stanfill, Marie Szymcek and Mary Tolka. ## Unexpected Weight Loss Puzzles Researchers

WASHINGTON -- A nutritional researcher has announced that a "high-tech" natural food tablet, originally designed to help ease world hunger problems, contains ingredients that according to some studies can cause significant weight loss.

Dr. William Morris says that a study published in The British Journal of Nutrition found that an ingredient, a natural plant colloid, caused significant weight loss, in spite of subjects being instructed not to alter normal eating patterns. Dr. Morris is the director of National Dietary Research, an organization that for over ten years has studied the effect of certain foods on weight fluctuation. Researchers are puzzled as to the reason for the weight loss, but some speculate that there may be several reasons for the unexpected results. Although other research journals using other colloids reported similar results, Dr. Morris cautions that the scientific community is not in total agreement on the benefits of these natural plant substances and that universal acceptance will depend on further study.

National Dietary Research, however, has fortified and reformulated the original formula with a special colloid formula known only to the suppliers who have exclusive distribution rights. Called Food Source One, this unique formula comes with a variety of nutritionally sound diet plans, specially designed by NDR to help people lose weight without drugs or stimulants.

Although individual weight loss will vary, some individuals have experienced extra-ordinary results and lost 70 pounds or more easily and safely with Food Source One. This is an excellent opportunity for overweight individuals to rid themselves of excess fat and return to fitness.

Trojan athletes back on track after second-place showing

Sprints, field events lead Madison at Red Bud

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

Senior sprinter Robert Weathers led the way with two first-place finishes, and the Madison High track team continued its gradual surge by placing second Saturday at the Red Bud Invitational.

Weathers

Weathers, who raced to wins in the 100-meter and 200-meter events, also anchored the Trojans' 400 and 800 relays. Weathers' full day of work was just one of several contributions coach Charles Steptoe singled out for praise.

"I thought his performances overall were good," Steptoe said. "He's coming on. He did a lot for us."

Perhaps most encouraging was Weathers' effort in the 400 relay, where he teamed with Tavares Young, Eugene Williams and Jason Jones to win in a time of 45.6 seconds. That's not far off from 44.8, the state-qualifying mark this year.

"The hope is we can get there," Steptoe said. "Now, at least we have a credible time. I hope we continue to improve."

The Trojans had four firsts. Weathers won the 100 in 11.3 and the 200 in 23.1. Madison's 400 relay team took first place, and Derrick Hall won the discus with a throw of 130-5.

Madison wound up with 86

Trojanettes' high finish sign of things to come

By Tony Panozzo
Staff writer

The two top spots at the Red Bud Invitational belonged to Freeburg on Saturday, but Madison was just behind — especially the Trojanettes, who tied for second place among girls teams with Roxana.

The Trojanettes and the Shells posted 68 points to rank behind Freeburg, which scored 75 points to win the meet. Freeburg also won the boys portion of the meet.

With a few adjustments here or there, Trojanette coach Gene Briggs said, Madison could have finished ahead of Freeburg.

"We were very pleased with the outcome," Briggs said. "It was a great effort by our team. I thought we'd do OK, but I challenged the girls to do their best and they did a little better than what I expected."

Taylor

The Trojanettes had four firsts, including two from sprinter Yukeitha Gardner, and also scored points in the field events.

Gardner, who battled injuries last year as a junior, has fared well in her senior year. She won the 100-meter dash with a time of 12.8 seconds and also the 200-meter dash in 27.1.

Gardner's teammates were not far off. Latrisha Swift placed fourth in the 100 in 13.8 seconds, and Shermaine Russell placed fourth in the 200 in 29.1.

The Trojanettes' other wins came in the 400 and 800 relays. The 400 relay team of Gardner, Swift, Russell and Tiffany Taylor finished in 51.9 for first place.

Taylor, Russell and Swift combined with Tracey Granger to win the 800 relay in 1:54.3. Briggs' freshman 800 relay team of Cheryl Gardner, Shannon Short, Shantavia Berry and Christina Short also won its age division with a time of 1:58.3.

"We're meeting our goal, which is to improve in each meet," Briggs said. "I hope the girls continue to work, because they will be successful if they keep it up."

Madison had three key individual performances from Short and Joi Woodfork. Short placed fifth in the shot put with a throw of 27-7½, while Woodfork placed in two hurdle races. She took third in the 100-meter hurdles (18.2) and sixth and 300-meter hurdles (51.5).

Two of Madison's relay teams placed seventh; the 800 medley team of Taylor, Granger, Short and Berry (2:09.4) and the 1600 relay team of Taylor, Berry, Woodfork and Short (4:47.4).

Sharing the spirit

Race officials mapping out morning's worth of festivities

By Scott Marion
Staff writer

The racing portion of the Spirit of St. Louis Road Race, set for May 15 in downtown St. Louis, will end before 9 a.m. That's when the party starts.

"We want to create a festival atmosphere for the participants and the spectators," said Craig Virgin, executive director of the first-year race. "We want to make it a fun environment, where people won't want to leave right after the race.

"We want them to eat, drink and enjoy themselves at Kiener Plaza (site of the post-race party and awards ceremony). We want to keep things hopping until noon."

All three portions of the race — a 10K run, a 3K jog/walk and a wheelchair race — will start points to fall behind meet champion Freeburg, which totaled 133 points. Sparta and Chester tied for third place with 60 points each.

Steptoe was encouraged by how the Trojans compared to Freeburg, a much larger team and perennial power along with Madison. The Trojans brought 16 athletes, while the Midgets had over 40.

"I guess it shows that we are right behind Freeburg," Steptoe said. "It was a fairly good meet. The times weren't as good as they should have been, but it was good to be able to get some competition.

"We didn't have our best field events."

The Trojans were without triple jumper Edmund Butler, but they still scored considerably in the field events. Jason Jones placed second in the high jump with a mark of 5-10, and long jumper William Russell cleared 19-2 for third place.

In the weights, Hall continued to look sharp. He won the discus and threw 43-6½ in the shot put, good for second place. His best throw of the year is 45-2.

Hall's discus throw marked a personal best and impressed Steptoe.

"That's his best by far," Steptoe said. "I think that's great. I would think he would continue to work on that and improve."

Steptoe was also pleased with his freshman-sophomore 800 relay team. Underclassmen Teddy McCline, Cedric Richmond, Harvell McDonald and Antonio Henderson took third in their age division with a time of 1:49.1.

Injuries and illnesses did not hamper the Trojans as much as they have earlier this year, but Steptoe said Young and Weathers had the flu. Both are key to Madison's relay teams.

"Jason Jones is not up to form, either," Steptoe said. "Everybody's a little bit behind."

Steptoe said the Trojans are simply working on establishing consistency as the weather continues to keep practices and meets to a minimum.

"We just don't have the endurance we need right now," Steptoe said. "If we can get some more meets in this week, we'll do well."

The Trojans were scheduled to run Monday at Collinsville against the host Kahoks, Highland and Mascoutah. Their next meet is Friday, when both the girls and boys teams travel to Greenville for the Greenville Comet Relays.

Saturday's finish, Steptoe said, was an indication of the Trojans' potential.

"I felt optimistic after the meet," Steptoe said. "There were some areas where I thought we could do better, but I think we're coming along."

between 8 and 8:15 a.m.

"We're asking this year that all the people who want to walk the course sign up for the 3K," Virgin said. "We hope to get walkers on the 10K next year, but we have to prove ourselves so the police will let us block the streets longer. It may take an hour and a half to walk the 10K."

The 3K course starts at the southeast corner of Kiener Plaza, goes straight down Broadway, turns left on Gratiot for one block to Fourth Street and all the way to the Convention Plaza. From there, it goes back down Broadway to the finish line at the northeast corner of Kiener Plaza.

The 10K course has the same starting point, then does a loop around Busch Stadium, returns to near the starting area and continues south on Broadway, which turns into Seventh Street.

At the Anheuser-Busch brewery — the southern tip of the course — the runners will go back up Broadway to Fourth Street and follow it to Washington Avenue and the Missouri Athletic Club, the northern tip of the course. The course then goes left on Broadway to the finish line at Kiener Plaza.

"We'll have police protection plus 50 to 60 race marshals in special yellow volunteer T-shirts," Virgin said. "There will be lime arrows on the streets, so there is no chance people will get lost."

The course, formerly used for the Mizzou Run, is ideal for spectators as well as competitors.

"For the 10K, there will be four opportunities for people to see the race," Virgin said. "They can watch the start and the loop after the stadium. They can walk one block to Fourth Street to catch it at the five-mile mark, then walk back for the finish.

"For the 3K, they can see the start, the midpoint and the finish."

The $10,000 prize purse for the 10K race offers prizes in four categories for runners and five categories for wheelchair athletes. The United States Association of Blind Athletes will award gift certificates to the top three male and female blind runners in the open divisions.

There are 12 age divisions in the 10K race, with one to five awards per division. There are nine age divisions in the 3K race, with one to three awards per division.

"We'll have custom-engraved plaques, anywhere from one to five deep, for the top finishers in each age group," Virgin said. "We'll also have gift certificates from sporting goods manufacturers for the first-place finishers in each age group."

After the race, fresh fruit, salads and breadsticks from The Olive Garden and Coca-Cola beverages (including fruit drinks and bottled water) will be available to all participants. Budweiser will be free to all participants age 21 and older who enjoy beer.

Each entrant receives a commemorative T-shirt. The first 2,000 entrants also get a free pair of sunglasses from Roho, Inc.

"Tents and booths will be set up for food and drink giveaways (to all entrants)," Virgin said. "We'll have concession stands where spectators can buy food and drinks. We'll also have commemorative imprinted caps and towels available for purchase by participants and spectators alike.

"Before the race, we'll have a DJ to play taped music. Between the race and the awards ceremony, a live band will be performing a couple sets. If it's received well, we may hold the band over for one more set after the ceremony."

The entry fee for the race is $10 by mail (entries must be postmarked by May 11). The fee for in-person registration, at Kiener Plaza, is $12 from 3-8 p.m. on May 14 or $15 from 6:30-7:30 a.m. on May 15.

For more information, call (618) 537-9500, (314) 768-5325 or (314) 781-3926.

gave him an idea of what to expect from his team in the postseason.

"It's still early, but everyone on the team is working hard," Briggs said. "We are on track to qualify for state in several events. We're getting better."

The meet also gave the Trojanettes a chance to compete against two of the area's better programs, Freeburg and Roxana. Madison will run into both teams at sectional time. Briggs said another team to watch is Carlinville.

"Those four teams (including Madison) will be fighting for the title," Briggs said. "Saturday's meet really gave us a chance to see some teams we'll meet down the road."

Madison's next meet, the Greenville Relays, is scheduled for Friday.

Remember the Good Ol' Knees?

Can you remember when your knees were not a painful problem? Maybe you were a weekend warrior until you twisted your knee, or perhaps you injured it at work. Now your knee is painful and swollen; you may have limited motion or the feeling that your knee is not going to support you. Sometimes your joint locks, clicks or feels weak and unstable.

When that happens, arthroscopy, a surgical procedure, can be performed to diagnose and treat joint injuries and problems. An arthroscope, a miniature camera and lighting system, is inserted through a small incision in the knee for diagnosis and, if necessary, surgery. Because the incision is small, you go home the same day as surgery, the scar is small and recovery fast.

Don't let your knees keep you down, call The Hip and Knee Center at 235-0007.

Local race team hoping to add another crown

The "B" Auto Parts racing team, operated by Charlie and Sandy Barzoff of Granite City, is out for another championship year.

The Barzoffs, along with driver Ed Dixon, have won numerous titles over the years while competing in the modified division of the Allied Auto Racing Association of St. Louis.

Dixon, of Washington, Mo., has been driving race cars for 19 years. He and the Barzoffs have operated a three-car team and have won titles at the Belle-Clair Speedway in Belleville, the St. Charles (Mo.) Speedway and the I-55 Raceway in Pevely, Mo.

Dixon has won eight straight titles and nine titles overall with the Allied Auto Racing Association. He has also won two titles at the Old Lake Hill Speedway in Valley Park, Mo.

For the 1993 season, Dixon and the Barzoffs will be racing late-model stock cars full time on several Midwest dirt tracks with the United Midwest Promoters Racing Association.

The Barzoffs will be fielding three new C.J. Rayburn late model stock cars from Indianapolis, Ind. The three cars are built identically and painted blue and white. They are sponsored by Steak and Shake restaurants and the Dan Althoff Trucking Co. of High Ridge, Mo.

The cars are all equipped with Kirn racing engines. The team's plans are to race weekly at the Godfrey Speedway on Fridays, at the I-55 Raceway on Saturdays and the St. Charles Speedway on Sundays. The three-night events will be known as the Triple-Trac racing group. The team will also be racing in several special events in other states.

This year's Barzoff racing team consists of three cars and will be competing in the United Midwest Promoters Racing Association.

Journal Fall Tour travels to Heidelberg

The old university town of Heidelberg is located on the Nekar River where it emerges from the forested hills of Odenwald.

It was devastated during the Thirty Years War and almost completely destroyed by the French in 1689 and 1693, so that most of its important buildings now exist in the Baroque style which prevailed in the 18th century, rather than the Gothic Medieval.

By far the most interesting and inspiring building is Heidelberg Castle. Devastated by the French and then struck by lightning in 1764, this magnificent red sandstone structure, standing 330 feet above the river, still dominates the city. In one of its cellars is the famous Heidelberg tun, an enormous wine cask with a capacity of 49,000 gallons. The castle is reached from the lower city by a cable railway.

Heidelberg University, the oldest in Germany, was founded by Pope Urban VI in 1386. It houses the Heidelberg Jaw, a fossil jawbone, probably 400,000 years old, that was found in the vicinity of the town in 1907.

The Journal-sponsored Alpine Tour will visit the old town of Heidelberg on Oct. 1. With the famed castle looming above, Journal tour members will enjoy a lazy afternoon of shopping and sight-seeing in this typically old-world atmosphere.

The Journals' Alpine tour departs Sept. 23, just at the right time to enjoy the fall season in the Alpine villages and towns of Austria, Liechtenstein, Switzerland and Germany, including the grandest of all fall festivals — Munich's Oktoberfest.

This unusual itinerary provides exciting sight-seeing and excursions with ample free time for individual activities. The tour is operated and arranged by TWA and Tenholder Travel.

Call toll free 800-333-5910 for information and reservations or contact a Vista Independent Agent in your area.

The Old Town of Heidelberg, with the castle looming above, is a favorite stop on fall itineraries and is included on the Journals' Fall Tour.

Actress throws self into role

Masterson goes all out for 'Benny & Joon'

By Harry Hamm
Correspondent

For Mary Stuart Masterson, her role as Joon Pearl in "Benny & Joon" meant commitment above and beyond what is normally expected from a Hollywood actress.

As Joon, Masterson, 26, plays a young woman in Spokane, Wash., who suffers from a mental disorder that causes her to come unglued when faced with even minimal negative stress.

Joon functions well under the loving care of her older brother, played by Aidan Quinn, until the chance for first love enters her life in the presence of a carefree character named Sam, played by Johnny Depp.

Masterson is known for throwing herself into her movie roles. In preparing for the role of the mentally delicate Joon, Masterson, the daughter of director Peter Masterson and actress Carlin Glynn, did her homework. She read about her character's mental condition and even spent time working with a group called The Imagination Workshop, a program that works with the underprivileged.

Masterson said she enjoyed the demands of putting together the jigsaw pieces of her role.

"Joon is everything from: a highly intelligent woman with a quick wit to a person with virtually no grasp on reality," she said. "It was really revealing to play a character whose confidence is shaken by the confusion she lives with every day. My own insecurities came right to the surface as a result.

"But this story is basically about love," Masterson said.

Masterson was referring to the part of the story where her character's brother, Benny, is challenged with the prospect that no longer protecting his sister from the real world may be the only way to allow her to achieve lasting happiness.
